AGREEMENT LIKELY AT GENEVA MEET

CRUISER QUESTION BELIEVED NEARING 4-YEAR SETTLEMENT

Britain Willing To Make
Temporary Arrangement, Said

LONDON, July 28.—As the tri-partite naval conference in Geneva resumes, the belief prevails in London today that the way has been opened for adjusting the difficulties between the United States and Great Britain on the question of cruisers and that an agreement for at least four years will be reached.

The basis for this feeling is the statement of Sir Austen Chamberlain in the House of Commons that the British government is willing to make a temporary arrangement about the immediate future of cruiser building, which is interpreted here as meaning that Great Britain offers no objections to the United States building as many large cruisers as congress will approve between now and 1931 when the whole question of naval strength will be reconsidered.

Under such an agreement the United States would achieve superiority in heavy battle cruisers, while Great Britain would concentrate on building light cruisers, which are considered essential for commercial protection.

Naval parity between the United States would be lacking during the period of the temporary agreement although, as Sir Austen pointed out yesterday, Great Britain would abandon the principle of maritime equality in perpetuity.

Sir Austen's statement has been endorsed generally by the British press. The Manchester Guardian today said:

"Security by means of naval defense is largely a matter of money and since we are no longer the richest nation, we can not be sure of always having the strongest navy."

"Whether we want to or not, we must rely for our security upon the sagacity of our politicians and their ability to keep us out of war."

"If our politicians can not already guarantee that under no circumstances will they lead us into war with the United States, they have no business to attend a disarmament conference."

Two trainmen hurt in crossing crash

PITTSBURGH, July 28.—Two trainmen were injured when the locomotive of the capital limited, fast Baltimore and Ohio Railroad train, sideswiped a coal car at the Herron crossings in Allison Park, a suburb, today.

The injured were R. E. Armstrong, engineer and W. H. Snyder, fireman, both of New Castle, Pa., who received slight lacerations when their engine went into the ditch, followed by the tender. Two Pullman cars were derailed in the accident, but remained upright. The occupants were jarred, but otherwise were uninjured, railroad authorities reported.

The wreck was caused, authorities said, when a broken flange of a coal car on a freight train derailed the car, throwing it between the freight tracks and the tracks of the passenger.

PRINCE CAROL WILL PURCHASE CHATEAU

PARIS, July 28.—Former Crown Prince Carol, of Roumania, who has been living in a villa in Neuilly with his companion, Mme. Lupescu, since his exile from his native land, is completing today the details for the purchase of a chateau about 100 miles from Paris.

It is understood Carol is buying the chateau at the request of the Roumanian royal family and that it will be paid for with money bequeathed Carol by his father, the late King Ferdinand.

Gen. Balef, attached to the Roumanian royal household, who has just returned to Bucharest after conferring with Carol, promised to see that the money was forthcoming immediately.

MOTHER QUESTIONS AIMEE'S STORY

SEARCH FOR SUBWAY BOMB USER DIVERTED TO PENNSYLVANIA

NEW YORK, July 28.—Scranton, Pa., became the operating center today of New York detectives seeking the person who placed an 18-inch dynamite bomb, capable of taking an incalculable toll in human life and property loss, in an Interborough Rapid Transit company tunnel under the East River.

A close analysis of the main charge in the bomb disclosed that it was of a type made only by one manufacturer in the United States and he is located in Scranton, according to authorities in charge of the investigation.

Fingerprints other than those of the trackwalker who found the deadly missile were found on the bomb and these lent added impetus today to the search of police for the person who placed it in the tunnel.

Alarmed by the ease with which anyone on a destructive errand may enter the subway tracks, police and Interborough officials planned today to maintain guards at all entrances, especially those leading into the tunnels.

Although a few small mines resumed operation by making temporary agreements with union miners to continue the Jacksonville wage scale of $7.50 a day, and a few small mines also resumed operation on the open shop basis, the bulk of the 25,000 Ohio miners originally affected by the strike are still maintaining their enforced idleness, and production is virtually at a standstill.

Little suffering is reported from the various Ohio coal districts among union miners. In some cases the miners have been evicted from company houses, but antipathy to the strike, the workmen had accumulated considerable cash reserves prior to the walkout, and many have found other employment at harvesting and other farm work, highway construction, building in the pottery and steel plants and other factories.

Merchants in the mine districts, mostly in sympathy with the miners, are reported "carrying" the idle miners' accounts for food supplies and other essentials, in many towns.

The strike in Ohio has been marked thus far by its peaceful character, two or three isolated sporadic outbreaks being the only violence reported.

East Liverpool, O., July 28.—Forty strikebreakers, imported by the Seger Coal Co., from Pennsylvania, who have been quartered in a local hotel several days, today prepared to go to West Point, a village near here, and endeavor to reopen the company's mine there.

Plans for an effort to break the strike, which has tied up the Seger mine since December, were announced by John Seger, president, in a letter to Sheriff George Wright of Columbiana County, in which he called upon the sheriff for protection for the strikebreakers.

The sheriff and a deputy hurried to the village today, prepared to cope with any possible trouble.

MERGER LOOMS

CANTON, O., July 28.—Recurrent reports of a probable merger in the Metropolitan Paving Brick Company, of Canton, with two large Illinois concerns in the same line were seen as having some foundation when the stock of the company began to mount late yesterday. One official of the local concern admitted that "such a step would likely result if the company gets a satisfactory offer."

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., July 28.—A fresh burst of bad weather off the British coast held Capt. Frank T. Courtney, British transatlantic flyer, storm bound today.

A wind of gale proportions swept the Calshot naval air depot.

Courtney said that all was in readiness for his departure as soon as there was a break in the storm. The motor and radio apparatus of the "Whale" flying boat are in perfect working order and the airman is ready for the hop off as soon as conditions permit.

The air ace is hopeful of getting away before Sunday.

CLAIM AUTO THEFT

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., July 28.—Henry J. Alden, 26, was to be arraigned here today on an auto theft charge, after Beatrice Blackshire Alden, 23, his bride of two days, confided to police her suspicions of the ownership of her husband's car. Police declare the machine was stolen from Henry Meadows of Barboursville, W. Va.

MINES REMAIN IDLE DESPITE PROMISES OF COAL OPERATORS

STRIKEBREAKERS TO ATTEMPT TO HALT ONE TIE-UP

COLUMBUS, O., July 28.—Despite threats of Ohio mine operators to re-open their mines, tied up since March 31 by the strike of United Mine workers in the central competitive field, the deadlock that virtually paralyzed coal production in the Ohio pits today remained in effect, as the end of the fourth month of tie-up neared.

Although a few small mines resumed operation by making temporary agreements with union miners to continue the Jacksonville wage scale of $7.50 a day, and a few small mines also resumed operation on the open shop basis, the bulk of the 25,000 Ohio miners originally affected by the strike are still maintaining their enforced idleness, and production is virtually at a standstill.

Police declare the machine was stolen from Henry Meadows of Barboursville, W. Va.

The youthful and lovely Princess Helene of Rumania, mother of the newly crowned King Michael, finds herself faced with a new responsibility as her son occupies the throne under a regency, and supporters of the exiled Prince Carol, his father, clamor for him to seize the crown.

MID-WEST GOVERNORS FAVOR CONFERENCE ON FARM RELIEF

Take Up Suggestion Of Maryland Chief Executive
To Have Country's Best Minds Consider
Problem Of Farmer

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., July 28.—A conference of the country's best minds—economic, financial, industrial and agricultural—to consider the existing farm situation and to try to evolve a workable plan of relief, was being considered seriously here today by several middle-west governors who have been west vocal at the annual governor's conference in demand that something be done before winter.

Although the grain belt governors favor strongly the McNary-Haugen bill, and have severely criticized President Coolidge for vetoing it, they realize that probably another veto awaits the measure when, and if, congress passes it again. It will be reintroduced in the new congress in December and probably will pass, but even the most ardent McNary-Haugenite admits there is little prospect of passing it over a veto.

Therefore, a casual suggestion thrown out by Governor Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, that a conference of the leading financial, economic, industrial and agricultural world might be helpful, found increasing favor among the westerners as the governor's conference broke up today.

Several of the governors would like to see President Coolidge himself call the conference. But if he is unwilling they believe the idea is feasible without White House support. They realize that the opposition to the McNary-Haugen bill centers in the great conservative business interests of the east. And they believe that if men of the type of Judge Elbert H. Gary of the U. S. Steel Corporation, Owen D. Young, who collaborated with General Dawes in the formation of the Dawes plan; and the most powerful bankers of the east could be got around the same table with spokesmen for the farmers, the easterners could be convinced of the seriousness of the situation, and possibly a constructive program evolved.

Governor Hamill of Iowa, Governor McMullen of Nebraska, Governor Christensen of Minnesota, Governor Paulsen of Kansas, and Governor Sorlie of North Dakota, praising the farm bloc in the governor's conference all expressed interest and approval of Ritchie's conference idea.

SEVENTY TWO KILLED IN CHINA
WHEN MAGAZINE IS EXPLODED

SHANGHAI, July 28.—Thirty-two Chinese soldiers and forty civilians, including several firemen, were killed in the explosion of an ammunition dump and subsequent fire in Hankow, according to word received here today. The fire was burning fiercely when the dispatch was filed.

Severe fighting continues along the Tsinpu front. Large numbers of wounded are reaching Nanking daily from that region.

Nanking reports that 35,000 Nationalists (Cantonese) have been moved towards Wuhu and Nanking preparatory to operations against the Wuhan forces.

About 22,000 Wuhanites have been landed in Kiukiang and are being moved toward Changsha. Reinforcements are being sent steadily out from the southern army base in Hankow.

Approximately 10,000 reinforcements have been dispatched northward from Pukow in an effort to halt the Nationalist advance. A heavy force of Cantonese remains in Nanking.

Michael Borodin, former Soviet advise to the Hankow government, has gone to Chenchow, enroute for Russia by way of Shensi on a special train.

RIFT OVER ANGELUS TEMPLE WIDENS AS MA KENNEDY OUSTED

Evangelist Swoons As Mother Doubts Kidnaping Yarn

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—Aimee Semple McPherson's story of her Mexican kidnapping came to life again today with the evangelist's mother openly questioning the truth of her daughter's narrative.

Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, mother of the red-haired pastor of Angelus Temple, publicly doubted the kidnapping story after Mrs. McPherson had ousted her from management of the temple.

"I have never been able to get the truth about the kidnapping of sister," Mrs. Kennedy remarked. "I knew when she was found at Douglas that something was wrong but I've never been able to find out the truth."

These statements of Mrs. Kennedy sent the evangelist into a swoon, and today her emotional behavior betrayed her anguish over the widening breach between her mother and herself.

"I am stunned by mother's words," Aimee gasped, "but no matter what anyone says about the kidnapping they cannot change the facts."

The evangelist carefully explained that the ousting of her mother from the temple management had been demanded by the Angelus temple congregation. "I have had no quarrel with mother," she insisted.

"It is the church committee representing the church that is making certain demands on mother, not me."

A "sinister influence" is responsible for her daughter's present conduct, "Mother" Kennedy declared.

"When Kenneth Ormiston (former Angelus temple radio operator) came back I tried to get the truth and things cleared up about the kidnapping, but I couldn't," Mrs. Kennedy went on.

"I felt there was some evil influence working behind things then and that same sinister and mysterious force is making sister act this way now."

Although temple leaders indicated Mrs. Kennedy would not be allowed to resume control of church finances, several proposals were made to her today. They were the following: A tour of the Holy Land at the expense of the church; a return to Angelus Temple in a private capacity; possible reconciliation with her husband, W. Whitebeck, of New York City.

In view of "Mother" Kennedy's threat, quoted by her daughter, that she would "break and crush" Mrs. McPherson, it was thought unlikely that the militant mother of the evangelist would quietly resign, surrendering without a struggle her half interest in the million-dollar "four square gospel" church.

Mrs. Kennedy accused her daughter of "double-dealing." She charged that while her daughter was encouraging the leaders of the temple rebellion she was also sending her reassuring messages.

ADHERENTS OF LEON
TROTSKY EXPELLED
TO SIBERIAN POSTS

Russian Communists
Crush Opposition
Through Police

MOSCOW, July 28.—More than seventy-five adherents of Leon Trotsky and Gregory Zinoviev, leaders of the "left" oppositionists in the Russian Communist party, have been expelled summarily from the party this year.

A third as many more have been sent to Siberia, not in exile, but to governmental posts, tantamount to exile. Their movements are watched day and night by agents of the G. P. U., the government political police, successor to the Tcheka.

This became known today on the eve of the meeting of a plenum of the central executive and the central control committees of the party which has been called for July 30 to vote on Trotsky's and Zinoviev's banishment from the central committee. Such banishment would amount to political, if not physical, exile.

"The decks have been cleared," said one party leader, admitting that the implication was that the proletarian dictators, headed by Joseph Stalin, had for months been knocking the props from under the opposition in preparation for a safe and painless expulsion of Trotsky and Zinoviev.

Those already banished from the party or politically exiled, are powerless to rally around Trotsky in an emergency. A man outside the all-powerful party fold has no status and no friends to help him should he take up the fight. He is just as liable to be arrested and executed as the debested white guards and monarchist conspirators.

Trotsky's friends expected the worst. The arguments, they say, have been on Trotsky's side, but where control of a political machine is at stake, arguments do not count.

Lives at Stake

These three people are on trial this week at Franklin, La., charged with the killing of James LeBoeuf, the most brutal murder in the history of Louisiana. The two upper pictures are of Dr. Thomas E. Dreher and Mrs. Ada LeBoeuf, the dead man's wife, alleged to have hired James Beadle, shown in the bottom picture, to shoot LeBoeuf.

CHILD IS KILLED

NEW LEXINGTON, O., July 28.—George Saxton, 5, son of a farmer living near Redfield, was instantly killed when he and two playmates climbed on the wagon of Ambrose Tague to take a ride. The team became frightened, bolted, and upset the wagon on the child. The other two lads jumped off the wagon and escaped uninjured.

BARODA SECTION IS VISITED BY STORMS TAKING HEAVY TOLL

Cities Inundated And Cotton Crop Is Partially Lost.

LONDON, July 28.—Only meagre details have thus far been received here of the catastrophic floods which are reported to have swept portions of India.

Calcutta and Bombay dispatches state that the dead are reported at more than 1,000 and that inestimable damage has been done.

More than 50 per cent of the cotton crop in the important cotton growing section of Gujarat has been destroyed. A Bombay dispatch states.

Continuous rain is spreading disaster in Assam and in Rangoon, Bengal and Bombay.

One dispatch states that complete destruction of the town of Siraganj, with a population of 50,000 is threatened.

BOMBAY, July 28.—Disastrous floods, with colossal damage and a serious loss of life, have occurred in the Baroda district, according to reports reaching here.

Interruption of communication has made it possible to determine accurately the situation which is described as unprecedented.

Reports from reliable quarters indicate that the city of Baroda is completely surrounded by water ten feet deep.

Railroad communication with Baroda may not be possible for at least a fortnight and telegraphic communication is by a roundabout route some 1,800 miles longer than normal.

A mail train was reported marooned in the flood, with rescue of the passengers impossible.

DRY AGENT MURDERS FELLOW OFFICER TO AVENGE LOVE AFFAIR

West Virginia Agent Admits Slaying As Gossip Sequel

HAGERSTOWN, Md., July 28.—Learning a week ago that gossip connected his wife's name with that of Hunter B. Stotler, 52, Keyser, W. Va., prohibition agent, E. Walters, Hagerstown agent, planned several ways of avenging himself on Stotler before he took the man to a lonely road near Boonsboro, Md., late Tuesday and shot him to death. State's Attorney Harper Ballentine said here today.

Walters broke down and confessed the murder after nearly six hours of grilling, at first steadfastly maintaining that Stotler was shot by bootleggers while the two agents were on a raid.

Walters told Ballentine that when he first learned of the alleged intimacies he decided to confront Stotler with the charges in public, then shoot him. Later he decided that there was a possibility he could cover up the crime, so he lured him to a deserted road. There, Walters said, he accused Stotler of the relationships with his wife, and shot him to death.

Walters' first story told of a running gun battle with bootleggers, in which Walters himself was wounded. This wound, a minor one was self inflicted, Walters confessed.

He is being held here without bail, on an open charge to await a decision of the coroner's jury which will hold an inquest tonight.

"BUD" AND LENA ON HONEYMOON TOUR

QUEBEC, Que., July 28.—James A. ("Bud") Stillman and his first wife, the former Lena Wilson, are on their honeymoon, moving to New York by easy stages to board the Olympic on August 1, and, the wedding over, the dense and normal silence has again settled down once more upon the mountains and valleys of St. Maurice at the Stillman estate in Grande Anse.

Mrs. Anne U. Stillman has quite recovered from her one-sided war with photographers and looks upon the scene as a somewhat amusing incident.

"They insisted upon taking pictures after we had told them that pictures during the ceremony would offend local religious prejudices," she said, but although the storm died down in Grande Anse the incident has amused all Canada.

ANTIOCH BRONZE FOUNDRY HAS COMPLETED LIFE-SIZE CAST

The life size group, "The Goose Girl," by Frank L. Jirouch, Cleveland, O., is considered one of the most interesting pieces of bronze work ever completed at the Antioch College Art Foundry.

Jirouch is the sculptor who recently won the Garden Club prize award for a statue to be placed in front of the Cleveland Museum of Art.

"The Goose Girl" was cast by the Italian "lost wax" process under the direction of Giovanni Polizetti, and upon its completion a short time ago, was placed on the estate of George Marshall, Cleveland.

"The City Fettering Nature," by Alexander Blazye, instructor in sculpture at the museum, took first prize in the May annual exhibit of the Cleveland Art Museum for sculpture.

FLATTERY

"Tis an old maxim in the schools that flattery is the food of fools," moralized Dean Swift.

"A flatterer's mouth worketh ruin," says the Bible.

"Trust not the flatterer: in the days of sunshine he will give thee pounds of butter, and in thy need deny thee a crust of bread," warns an ancient Chinese proverb.

Nowhere among the writings of the sages can be found a word of praise for the flatterer, and yet it is fair to put all of them in a class and condemn them utterly and equally?

A certain United States senator a few years ago was making his maiden speech in the senate. Rather, he was stumbling through it, for the fledgling legislator was suffering from stage fright and was "out of form." He realized the situation and when he sat down was covered by confusion. He was an experienced public speaker and an orator of renown in his home state, but here he had failed in making the most important address of his career. But as he ceased talking, three of his staunch friends in the senate rushed over to him, by some telepathic understanding among them, and congratulated him, saying it was one of the most logical addresses upon the subject under discussion to which they ever had listened.

These friends not only flattered the new lawmaker, but they lied outright to save his self-respect and to restore his self-confidence. They realized that once he should find his "sea legs" he would occupy his seat with credit and distinction to his state and nation. Their flattery of the untried senator had the effect intended and he walked from the senate chamber with his head in the air. Latterly he became one of the most skilled debaters and one of the most feared opponents in the upper house.

Was such flattery "the handmaid of vice," as Cicero called it, or was it not, rather, the possible savior of a reputation?

NO USE FOR MUSIC

A rather astonishing experiment is reported to have been performed by two German scientists, who declare that cows and goats gave more milk when music was played in the stable.

The farmers of Ohio have not so far installed radios and phonographs in their barns. The theory they hold to is that Mistress Moolycow gives the most milk when her mind is not excited, and that calm philosophy and an absence of disturbance would have a more favorable effect than to jazz her up with dance tunes. But perhaps that point of view will be considered too slow for this rapid generation.

The Way of the World

HATS OFF TO THE FRENCH

Not all American tourists like the French. Not all the French like American tourists. There has been a little loud talking back and forth across the water. But France, aside from spending too much money on a standing army, is usually intent on doing the right thing. Just now her congress votes $150,000 for the entertainment of the American Legion convention, soon to meet in Paris. Of course Parisians will get the money back. The veterans will be good spenders. But it is a courteous act.

JUST ANOTHER MIRACLE

What is a miracle or two in this day? Nothing to get excited about. An 8-year-old boy, sick on a steamer more than a thousand miles off the California coast, is treated by a doctor in a Los Angeles hospital. The treatment was carried on by radio instructions. Once it was a big world. Now we are all living on the same street.

SOMETHING THAT WORKS

An old idea is not good because it is old. A new idea is not good because it is new. What we are looking for is something that works for the greatest good of the greatest number. America has the idea in democracy. The reason it doesn't work as well as it should is not because a Mussolini dictatorship is a better form, or a soviet system is more practical. Not at all. The reason for its wobbling and creaking is that 50 percent of so-called good citizens take next to no interest in government.

THE GAS FACTS

Hearing it said and getting the facts continue to be two widely different things. We have been properly terrified by what have been declared to be the horrors of gas warfare. It has been said the use of gas will make wars of the future destructive beyond belief. Comes now the surgeon-general of the United States army, who reports that during the late war 24 percent of the casualties caused by wounds and agencies other than gas died, while only 2 percent of the gas casualties resulted in death.

THE HYPOCRITE

MY family is generous
With thanks for pies and cakes.
They know I stand and make them
For their dear hungry sakes.

They know I'm always ready
To stir up gingerbread,
Or shape a cookie-gentleman
With raisins on his head.

Dessert today brought praises
And smiling gratitude,
Avowals that none other
Prepares such luscious food.

I was a shameful hypocrite
As I took it from the shelf.
The truth is, I got hungry
For chocolate cake, myself!

KELLYGRAMS Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters M.D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

EDITORS NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot advise you individually. That is the province of your personal physician. She will answer questions in the column as soon as possible. When writing her for any material that is offered in the column, enclose a stamped envelope bearing your full name and address. Don't write "City." (For the reducing pamphlet you must also include a two-cent stamp extra.) Don't write over 200 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Address your letters to her in care of this paper. Unless these rules are complied with, the materials cannot be sent.

IF YOU WERE GOING TO EMPLOY A man for an important job and had your choice of one heavily in debt or one not in debt, which would you prefer?

You would probably make the same choice that I would and we might both be wrong.

A big insurance company made a statistical survey of several hundred salesmen and discovered the surprising fact that men heavily in debt were more likely to be successful than those without such burden.

The explanation is believed to be only partly that a man in debt works hard to get out of debt. Still more important is the fact that a man heavily in debt is probably a smart fellow or he wouldn't have succeeded in inducing a bank or other institution to let him owe so much money.

This same investigation showed that, while heavy indebtedness may indicate more than average ability, owing a trifling amount of money is almost certain to indicate just the opposite. Any man who can induce you to lend him $5,000 must be downright clever, but beware of the fellow who touches you for a ten spot, or habitually owes people small sums.

One of the research men at Columbia University has traced the relations between various social conditions and the business situation. He found that great revivals, as well as great waves of interest in religion or in trying to talk with the spirit world, have always come in periods of business depression. When affairs of this world look unpromising, we turn, it appears, to hope for better business or better things in the next world. Men like children. When everything goes wrong, they want to run home to mother, or to God, for consolation.

I often wonder what would happen if every life insurance agent succeeded in selling every married man all the insurance the agent says the man ought to buy—that is, enough to protect his wife and children from having to work to earn the family income. The result of this, if everybody actually did it, would make it unnecessary for future generations to work at all. Everybody would live on insurance legacies and pass this inheritance on to his children.

How to Achieve Beauty

MME. HELENA RUBENSTEIN
BEAUTY IN THE MOUNTAINS

If your vacation days are to be spent in the mountains you can hardly help making them count for beauty.

So much depends upon your lungs—upon getting the right kind of pure, fresh air to take into them and upon breathing deep down from your diaphragm so that every bit of the air in your lungs is frequently changed.

Do you know that lots of us go around with the same stale air in the bottom of our lungs that has been there a week, simply because we don't breathe deeply enough to get them emptied? An easy way to tell whether you are breathing correctly is to place your hands just above your stomach and below your ribs with the fingers barely touching in the center. Then take a breath and see how much expansion you get.

The cool nights and mornings in the mountains induce the profound sleep that gives absolute relaxation and means so much to beauty. You breathe more regularly and deeply in your sleeping than in your waking hours. And vice versa, you can sleep much more easily and soundly when you have spent the whole day in the fresh air and have been working your lungs to the utmost capacity. And remember that quiet, dreamless sleep is beauty sleep.

Get your eight hours of sleep, but do not think that you are benefitting by spending more time in bed. You are indulging in a luxury that does no good and may do you some harm.

Take sun baths if you can find the seclusion. Lie perfectly relaxed with as little clothing on as possible, and let the light rays of the sun play upon your skin. Like all other good things, however, a little is beneficial, but excess is criminal. Don't allow your skin to be burned by the direct hot rays of the noon-time sun. It is the light and not the heat rays of the sun that are beneficial. So choose the time of day for your sun baths accordingly, and don't overdo them.

FOOD ADVERTISEMENTS

There is no doubt that the public gets a good deal of dietetic ideas from food advertisements. Some of them are good, some are very misleading, therefore bad. If you are like most of us, when you get into a street car that carries advertisements, you probably read them over and over. And if you're on a diet, Oh, Girl! how those pictures of delicious foods stir you!

I'm going to comment on a few of the ads I recently encountered.

1. A big dish of delicious looking macaroni.

The slogan under this was: "Use as a change from potatoes." Now macaroni is a good energy food, and potatoes also are a good energy food, but you shouldn't use macaroni as a substitute for potatoes, for while they are both starchy foods, macaroni is made from wheat, and wheat and all grains leave a final acid reaction in the body. There are so many alkaline salts in the potato that the final reaction is alkaline. It also has more vitamins and minerals than ordinary macaroni is made from the refined flour and so has very little of these. The average American diet is composed of too many acid-forming and vitamin-weak foods. So don't use macaroni as a change from potatoes, but as a change from bread or other grains.

(The caloric value of one cup of cooked macaroni, plain—five ounces—is 100 C. The potato is 100 C. to the 3 1/2 ounces—one small medium.)

2. "Nut rolls—fresh roasted nuts, delicious chocolate." Oooh! This is the advertisement of a 10-cent roll. A good candy. Nuts have a splendid grade of protein, and they also have a high percentage of oil, so does the chocolate. I should judge that the entire roll would amount to at least 250 C. on account of the oil and nuts.

Candy is a concentrated food, mostly energy, and should not be given to children except as a desert, after all their growth foods have been taken; otherwise it may delay their appetites. Nut candies should never be given to young children who do not chew well, for they may choke on them.

The caloric value of these rolls should stir those who are trying to reduce, away.

3. Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil.

With this ad was a picture of a child with a bottle of the oil in front of it, and the caption was: "I Love It!"

I remember one mother who wrote me that her boy was normal in every way, except that he loved cod liver oil. Well, children can be taught to not dislike cod liver oil, that's sure.

Cod liver oil is very high in the growth vitamin A, and the anti-rachitic vitamin D, and is now given by many of our best pediatricians as early as the second month of life. The emulsions have about one-half the amount of oil that the straight oil has.

We are now advising those who are reducing to take one or two teaspoonsful of cod liver oil during the day to be sure of the vitamin A. Those who are gaining

Did you READ it?

Here are six questions dealing with news events of the past few days which have been reported in The Evening Gazette and The Morning Republican. Can you answer them accurately? If you can, you may claim credit as a really intelligent reader; but if you fail, that means you merely skim the news, as so many people do. Answers on Classified Page.

1. What recent discovery is expected to have a profound effect on politics in Indiana?
2. What was "Bud" Stillman's wedding gift to Lena Wilson, his backwoods bride?
3. What well known motion picture actress who recently announced a divorce suit against her husband, a motion picture actor, has changed her mind and postponed the action?
4. What is the name of the well known German aviator now in this country and upon what enterprise is she engaged?
5. A western congressman was drowned in San Francisco bay recently. What was his name and what state did he represent?
6. What is the name of the navy aviator who recently set a new altitude record for flying? To what height did he ascend?

MAKING MODERN MENUS

SALMON AND EGGPLANT

Instead of the ordinary salmon scallop, try this dish with eggplant. Peel an eggplant, wash it, cut it into a pound and a half, cut into cubes and cook until tender, then mash it with a fork. Combine it with a pound can of salmon, which has been drained and flaged, and add a cup and a half of thick white sauce. Put into a buttered baking dish, cover with bread crumbs, dot with butter and bake in a moderate oven half an hour.

SALMON AND RICE

Butter an oval mold and line it with an inch-layer of well boiled and drained rice. Have ready a mixture of one pound can of salmon, freed from skin and bones, half a cup of cracker crumbs, a teaspoon each of salt and lemon juice, a quarter of a teaspoon of sugar, an eighth of a teaspoon of pepper and two thirds of a cup of milk. Pack this into the rice-lined mold, cover the top with a layer of rice, put on the lid and steam three-quarters of an hour. Serve with a white sauce to which chopped pimientos have been added or with Hollandaise sauce.

SALMON TIMBALES

Chop a pound can of salmon very fine, add one beaten egg yolk, a teaspoon each of onion juice and Worcestershire sauce, an eighth of a teaspoon of salt and a quarter of a cup of finely chopped almonds; fold in the well whipped white of the egg and a cup of whipped cream and fill into greased timbale molds and bake until set, about fifteen minutes. Serve with highly seasoned cream sauce. Five servings.

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, July 28.—Within the past two years, there has been erected a magnificent building just back of the building on Center street in which the county courts are located. It is in one of the most highly populated areas in the city, at the start of Park Row, between the Bowery and Fayette street.

New York being the queer city it is, there is a small amusement park placed alongside of this building—the most incongruous place for such a thing imaginable. There is the usual ferris wheel and the small gambling stands, a couple of hot dog merchants and like attraction. I have no doubt that a great deal of its patronage comes from office clerks in nearby skyscrapers who spend their lunch hours there.

As a subject of interest to the sightseer in New York, Greenwich Village is generally thought to be in the same class with Chinatown, or the Woolworth building. It is said to be banal, lifeless, and no longer the place it once was. And yet I am bold enough to assert that it is still the most diverting spot in the city.

Its surname "village" is certainly apt. For all the metropolitan atmosphere it contains, it might be the merest hamlet in a deserted sector of the country. Indeed, such is the petty nature of activities in the village, it is really more small town than any real village I have ever seen.

Really it is Zion City of the House of David in reverse. It possesses the same spirit of segregation but has viewpoints in direct opposition to the ordinary colony.

A superb index to the character of the place may be found in its press. "Greenwich Village Quill" is a monthly sheet edited by Henry Harrison. One reading the editorial comment of this man for the first time might reasonably make the error of supposing him to be slightly cracked.

Most of his articles contain pretty spiteful attacks on other pseudo artists in the place. One man bummed two dinners from Harrison's. Another borrowed money from him (ten dollars). Despite Harrison's philanthropy to them it seems that these ungrateful fellows later made dirty cakes about him, Harrison, both verbally and in print.

Column after column are devoted to these many and complicated feuds. In the village, a dollar is equivalent to a thousand dollars uptown, and a meal is equal to a new automobile.

There are also, or at least were, other publications of this type. "The New Cow" was an especial enemy of "The Quill." "The Greenwich Village Saturday Night," as published by Lew Ney, was an eight-page paper, containing some verse, book and play reviews and a great deal of insignificant bickering on the part of Mr. Ney.

People in the Village are very much like children. Not only do they act like children, but their loves, affections, hates and dislikes are essentially childish. All of this is conducted in a most elegant manner, however. The language in which an editorial, demanding the return of a borrowed 50 cents, is clothed, might be a literary criticism of Shakespeare.

And therein lies the secret of these people's astinuity. With few of them gaining anything like success, most villagers are poverty stricken. Most of these potential geniuses are so poor as to be continually considering the source of the next meal. A chicken dinner to them is as important as is the buying of a new car to the average normal man.

Consider a few of the advertisements in a recent issue of "The Quill":

ROBERT EDWARDS
For Fifteen Years
The Village Photographer
(Intermittently)
ART WITHOUT ROBBERY
Or glance over the up-to-date notice of a local optometrist:
WRITING POEMS TIRES THE EYES
(Sometimes Editors, Too)
Drawing and Other Intellectual Work
Tires the Eyes Also.
Dr. M. Harrison

And when one reads of the enormous sums daily paid to second-rate dramatists up town one is surprised at this notice.

"Henry Harrison invites known and unknown playwrights to submit as many one-act plays as they wish. The terms of co-operation are: Each author pays $15 toward publication if his one-act play is accepted. If the book sells at $3 he will get five free copies. He has the privilege of buying additional copies at half the retail price. Little theaters are charged $10 for each play they produce, of which $7.50 will go to the author."

And just in case you visit the village, you might investigate such weird establishments as Romany Marie's or the Jolly Friars, Pepper Pot, the Ivory Tower, the Blue Horse, the Pirate's Den, Vagabondia, the Green Witch, Enrico and Pagliari, Mrs. Lane's Studio.

And while this subject is being discussed, did you know that in Greenwich Village alone there are seven theaters?

A most fascinating and at the same time a rapidly changing sort of engineering is now in progress at Park avenue between 46th and 45th streets. Formerly this block was simply enclosed by a wooden fence. The property was unoccupied above ground, simply being used as a skylight over the arks from Grand Central station which run underneath.

Without disturbing the train service on the tracks below or the traffic in the bordering streets, the job of building a new large building was begun. A huge derrick swung steel supports into place between the railroad tracks. Even as this was being done, trains were moving back and forth. The incredibly heavy beams would be swung down into the hole, barely missing a collision with an oncoming train. Thus will a mammoth place arise, straddled with no fuss or confusion, over the tracks of the New York, New Haven & Hartford and the New York Central.

Many Minds SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"Children are not always a comfort. When I look around and see what trouble and worry and sacrifice they entail upon their parents, I am more resigned to my fate. They may act as a disciplinary agent to their elders economy and patience and unselfishness and self-control, but these virtues may be acquired by other and less strenuous means. One does not have to be a parent to learn discipline; the proper sort of wife is an ideal disciplinary agent."—Thomas Aske Clark, of the University of Illinois.

CEDARVILLE, OHIO

PLAYGROUND NOW IN PLACE OF "ROARING
THIRD" PRECINCT

CLEVELAND, July 28.—Cleveland's "roaring third" precinct, scene of vendetta slayings, bootleg wars, and every crime on the catalogue, is to have the finest playground and recreational center for children in the country.

Frank S. Harmon, city park director, announces that work will start soon on the new community center and that he will ask the city council to appropriate a half million dollars to make it the model park of its kind, in the world.

Present To City.

The property to be developed was formerly owned by a Jewish orphanage. The Van Swearingen brothers, railroad magnates, purchased it and gave it to the city. Under an agreement with the orphanage trustees, however, none of the present buildings can be torn down or altered until 1929.

Work is to begin on a wading pool within a few days. Meanwhile, a survey of other recreational centers in all parts of the country is being made in order that the best and most modern ideas may be obtained in developing the local center.

To Have Auditorium.

In 1929, Harmon hopes to begin work on an auditorium, gymnasium and indoor swimming pool. He also plans to have an outdoor swimming pool and facilities for skating and coasting in the winter.

The fact that the park is to be built in the heart of the city's crime district is not expected to interfere with the success of the project. On the contrary, Harmon believes the playground will be better attended and more appreciated there than elsewhere, and that eventually it will go a long way towards bettering conditions in the notorious "roaring third."

BAD MAN SAYS "CHECK" TO COP

ELMSFORD, N. Y.—The village board of this slumberous hamlet was confronted with a serious situation the other day when Thomas Reiter, a local grocery store manager, wrote a formal demand on the authorities for refund of a check which he cashed for Grover S. Moore, chief of the local constabulary. The chief was asked to explain, but the explanation only thickened the fog. A nice looking man, the chief of police said, had approached him carrying a fraternal lodge membership in one hand and the check in the other. So the chief cashed the check for the fraternal brother, and then Thomas Reiter cashed the check for the chief. The awkward thing about it is that no bank will cash the check for anybody, and the village board is asking itself a lot of technical questions involving the value to Elmsford of a chief of police who doesn't know a city slicker when one offers him a bum check.

The Theatre

By FLEET SMITH

NEW YORK, July 28.—Women directors for women stars and men directors for men stars. And that's not such a far fetched possibility as it might sound—especially in view of the interesting situation that has resulted from the recent work of Esther Ralston, the young Paramount star.

Miss Ralston, under the exclusive direction of men for her first pictures, was regarded almost solely as a model, or a pretty figure on which to hang clothes and parade in front of the camera for pretty and attractive shots. Then, in defiance of all the traditional moving picture prejudice against women directors, Dorothy Arzner was made a director by Paramount and her first picture was Esther Ralston in "Fashions for Women", and her second was Esther Ralston in "Ten Modern Commandments".

And it remained for the critics of the screen to discover that Miss Arzner had done what her men-directorial rivals had failed to do, that is, see the humor and the charm of Esther Ralston's character and successfully transfer them on to the screen. Critics were astounded, they said, to discover that Miss Ralston had real emotional and acting ability as well as a distinct flare for comedy, and all are unrestrainedly praising her work and predicting even greater things for her.

Bebe Daniels is just about ready to appropriate the title of film-dom's champion all-around athlete. The whole thing started in "Dance of the Money", in which she learned to fence. Then she made "The Palm Beach Girl", and took the part of a swimmer and the pilot of a motorboat. She next made "The Campus Flirt", in which she gave Charles Paddock a close run for honors as a sprinter. Then "Senorita" was released by Paramount and Bebe had not only to demonstrate that she was an expert horsewoman, but was called upon to display great dexterity with the sword. Now she is making another sport story for Paramount, "Swim, Girl, Swim." Here she is shown as an expert swimmer.

mount's forthcoming picturization of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." The selection will be made after an inspection of photographs by a Paramount staff and Miss Anita Loos, author of the book.

FENCE AGAIN USED

An iron fence that once surrounded Greene County's old Court House, the structure which was replaced by the present building, has not outlived its usefulness. Stored at the County Infirmary for many years, a portion of the fence has been placed at the east and west ends of the new grandstand at the Xenia Fairgrounds.

ONE WAY TO CUT THE COST OF NEW FURNITURE

The cost of new furniture is keeping many families from making any purchase at this time.

But this cost may be very much lowered by turning in your old furniture as part payment on the new. Replacing old style furniture for new is a definite program in hundreds of homes. It is done gradually, piece by piece—or a room at a time.

Our trade-in or Exchange Store makes a quick outlet for this used furniture. It is bought by people who have one or more rooms which do not call for particularly fine pieces. This merchandise is kept separate and not one piece has ever entered the store where our new goods is sold.

Why not be one to take advantage of our trade-in plan? It is very simple—just like trading in a used car for a new one. Phone 684 and have our appraiser call at your home, or better still, call at our store and let us talk it over.

Having your used furniture appraised does not place you under any obligations to trade it in.

FAIR BOARD MAKING READY FOR ANNUAL EXPOSITION HERE

Eighty-eight years of progress will be exemplified at the annual Greene County Fair August 2, 3, 4, and 5 for which elaborate preparations are being made by the Greene County Agricultural Society.

Secretary J. Robert Bryson has established headquarters in the front office of County Commissioners in the Court House, and entries for both the speed and class events are coming in rapidly.

Entries for the three-day harness race meet will close Thursday night.

"Uncle" Steve Phillips, Lebanon, 56-year-old horseman and veteran of the Grand Circuit tracks, has nominated a three-year-old trotter for the three-year-old and under trot for a purse of $300, to be run as the second event on the opening day's card, Wednesday, August 3.

The veteran horseman has not appeared on the local track for many years.

Purses for the six races of the meet aggregate $3,300. The premier races will be the 2:14 pace for the Greene County Lumber Co. $500 purse Wednesday, August 3, and the free-for-all pace for the Nat Hunter $500 purse Friday, August 5. These are the largest purses of the meeting.

A. E. Staup, Tippicanoe City, has been engaged as starter this year but other officials have not been selected. C. M. Austin, B. U. Bell and Grant Miller are members in charge of the speed department.

It is announced that all horses and cattle entered in the second and third departments, and entries in baby beef and dairy calf clubs will be required to participate in the Live Stock Parade, Friday, August 5 at 12 noon. Any prize winner not parading will forfeit premium unless otherwise excused by the head of their respective departments. The parade will take place on the race track.

Three bands will provide music on different days during the fair. The New Burlington Band, and the Xenia Band have been engaged for this purpose, it is announced.

It Melts Freckles Away In 4 Days

H. L. Sayre was one of the first to learn that a clever chemist had at last discovered a real freckle remover—one that dissolves the brown pigment so that freckles actually melt away.

And when the unsightly spots have all gone what a difference in the texture of the skin—as soft as the finest velvet and clear and clean and youthful looking.

This new discovery is a cream and is called Flyte. It is easy to apply and never stains. H. L. Sayre and every forward-looking druggist sells it and if it fails the purchase price will be returned. Ask for a jar of Flyte. —Adv.

Here's Real Relief From Neuritis

In 24 to 48 Hours Pains Are Often Relieved and You Can Get Rest and Comfort Again.

Torturing pains—the kind that pierce and burn and never seem to let up—that rob a man of his sleep—that make him just a bag of nerves and all worn out.

Those are the pains that dope and coal tar products can only partially relieve.

The safest and most efficient way to get rid of the persistent, nerve-racking pains of Neuritis is to get a bottle of Allenru Special Formula No. 2. Be sure you get No. 2, which comes in capsule form. Take these little dark green capsules as directed and in about twenty-four hours you should be able to notice that they have considerably reduced if not almost banished those severe, torturing pains that have caused you so many sleepless nights. Continue for two or three days more until you are satisfied with results.

It doesn't matter how long you may have suffered or whether your Neuritis is in the shoulder, arm, neck or legs. Allenru Special Formula No. 2 should give you speedy relief. Sayre's Drug Store or any good druggist will be glad to supply you. —Adv.

Hobson's Son

Remember Hobson, or has the Spanish-American war faded entirely from your recollection? In any case, this upstanding chap is Richmond T. Hobson, son of that Captain Hobson whose achievements in that conflict brought him tremendous, if temporary, fame.

WILE SAYS:

unfavorable conditions. Apparently, authorities like Mr. Snow are not impressed by the official estimates that the value of American farm products this year will reach $14,000,000,000, an increase of $2,000,000,000 over last year.

In a special statement prepared for this writer, Mr. Snow summarizes his views in the declaration that "taking the situation as a whole, I do not recall a year in which the promise was as generally unsatisfactory as it is in 1927." He details the situation as follows:

"Drought seriously injured the winter wheat crop in Oklahoma and Kansas, and too much rain during the whole spring season left the plant without the usual vitality in all the territory east of the Missouri river. In addition, there has been a considerable amount of damage from black rust in winter wheat, a thing which is very unusual. Threshing returns are beginning to come in and they are reflecting disappointment over most of the belt. It does not look as if the winter wheat crop will total more than 550,000,000 bushels.

"The season in the spring wheat territory was very late this spring, and it was a physical impossibility to seed the full acreage intended. As a matter of fact, the acreage in North Dakota is considerably less than that of last year. The crop was seeded late over the whole area, and while weather conditions have been reasonably satisfactory since the crop was seeded, the growth has been slow and the crop is in more than the usual danger from black rust, which has already been reported at very many points, and from heat and blight before the normal hot weather of late July and early August is experienced. Up to the present time, however, in spite of the smaller acreage, there is promise of a materially larger crop than was harvested last year, but the crop will not be safe from rust danger until about three weeks

Is explained in wonderful Book sent free to all Expectant Mothers

MAKE the months of expectancy easier, freer from tension and pain; and make the birth of your child a happy event by using "Mother's Friend," the external lubricant for expectant mothers, known and used by three generations of mothers. Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Start today, and meanwhile write to Bradfield Regulator Co., B.A. 17, Atlanta, Ga., for wonderful containing information every expectant mother should have. Begin using "Mother's Friend" now and you will reap the wisdom of doing so as the weeks roll by. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all good drug stores—everywhere.

from this time, and every physical condition is favorable to its development.

"In the history of crop reporting, there has never been as unsatisfactory a promise for the corn crop as there is this year. The acreage is undoubtedly at least 5,000,000 acres short of that of last year, and where the crop should be late by July 4, as a matter of fact, a considerable part of it is just barely coming up. Taken as a whole, I think the corn crop is thirty days late and the chance of its maturing ahead of frost is slim. The government report, which is about to be issued, will undoubtedly show the lowest condition ever reported since crop reporting began. This low condition is a very serious matter this year because it represents a delay in growth that there is very small opportunity for correcting during the balance of the season.

"The oats crop was also seeded late for the same reason that corn was late, that is, because the months of April, May and the first half of June were marked by not only torrential rain, but the rains came day after day, giving no opportunity for prosecution of farm work between showers. The result is the oats crop, which should now be going to harvest in Cen-

Will your skin bear close scrutiny?

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of pimples, boils and other skin eruptions as being an indication of an abnormal condition of the system. This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.

You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It helps build up red corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the blood is nourished. "I suffered from impure blood—was weak, and I had lost so much weight, I didn't look natural. I had pimples and was also bothered with a breaking-out that itched terribly. I also had boils one after another. I tried different kinds of remedies but nothing did me any good until a friend advised me to take S.S.S., which I did. This was some time ago. Now I feel well, and I am getting along fine. S.S.S. stopped the itching and it cured me of boils. I advise all weak and run-down people to give S.S.S. a trial. It clears up the skin and makes you strong and fills you with energy." Mrs. J. V. Barker, 1337 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

S.S.S. is made from the fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory. It is time-tried and reliable. S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

The Rovin' Ritzies

By Flo Frederick

Here's a day of fishing. You'll all be wishing "Isn't it wonderful to be a Ritzie and to have such loyal friends?" asked Betty Ann. The Ritzies who had been left in Mayville had gathered together to read the letter that had just arrived from Deer Lake Lodge in northern Wisconsin. "You know," continued Betty Ann as she unfolded the letter. "That if we weren't all members of the Ritzie club, Patsy and Marty are bears and wolves, owls, squirrels, ducks and one big deer. I think that's why they call it Deer Lake Lodge. There used to be so many deer around this lake. Even yesterday, while we were out on a hike, we saw some fresh deer tracks. The guide said the tracks are about all you ever see anymore though because a deer can smell a person miles away and is very careful to keep out of the way. We heard yesterday that a woman at a nearby camp had shot two bears last week. Patsy was afraid to go outside the lodge after that until the guide told her that the woman had probably spent hours tracking down the bears. The few wild animals that are left are more afraid of the people than they are of the animals.

Patsy and I went fishing this morning and Oh boy! what a catch. When I think of how we used to sit along the bank of the old mill stream and wait for hours for a bite, it hardly seems possible that we could have caught so many perch this morning. We hardly had time to cast out bait in the water before three or four perch would jump for it. The water was so clear that we could see them swimming about jumping for the minnows. Patsy got so excited she almost fell out of the boat one time while she was teasing the perch with her minnow.

It was great sport because we would tease the little perch by pulling the bait just as they made a jump for it and then wait until a big fellow came along before letting it go. Several times, Patsy hooked a big one and got so excited over it that she threw it way up in the air and it was only by luck that it fell into the boat.

How I wish you could all have been here to join in the fun. There's one thing sure, there would have been plenty of fish to go around.

Your Ritzie Friend,

Marty.
P. S. The perch may have been fun to catch but the supper they made was better yet. Yum! Yum! I forgot to tell you that we had twenty-one on our string.

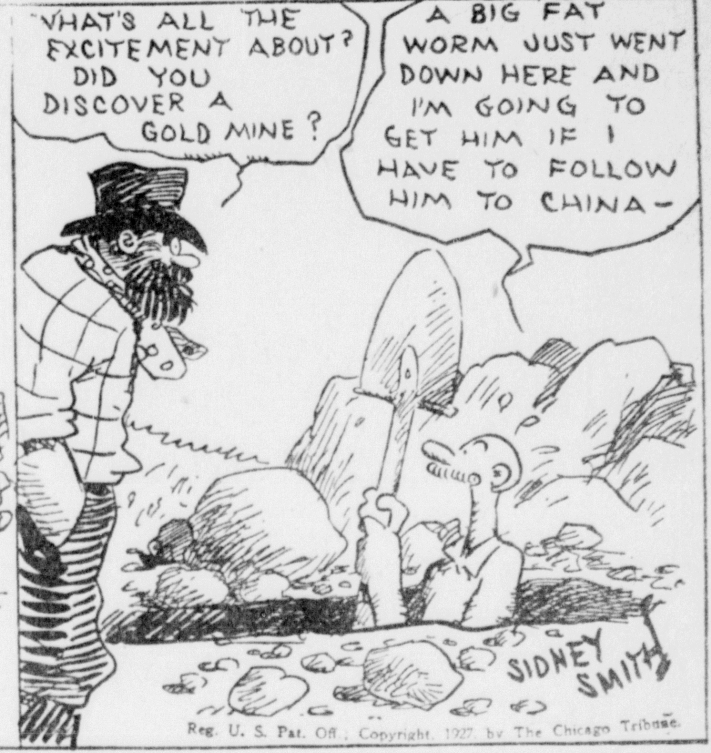

wouldn't be so faithful about writing. Especially when they are away on their vacation."

The twins and Bill agreed with her but were so anxious to hear Marty's letter—for he had put his name on the back of the envelope and so they didn't think it was the proper time to discuss the joys of being a Ritzie.

"What does it say?" interrupted Tag and so Betty started reading at once:

Hello Gang—
Talk about fun. Say, this is the life! I guess Patsy told you about our lodge and all the stuffed animals that hang on the wall. There

AGREEMENT LIKELY AT GENEVA MEET

CRUISER QUESTION BELIEVED NEARING 4-YEAR SETTLEMENT

Britain Willing to Make
Temporary Arrangement, Said

LONDON, July 28.—As the tripartite naval conference in Geneva resumes, the belief prevails in London today that the way has been opened for adjusting the difficulties between the United States and Great Britain on the question of cruisers and that an agreement for at least four years will be reached.

The basis for this feeling is the statement of Sir Austen Chamberlain in the House of Commons that the British government is willing to make a temporary arrangement about the immediate future of cruiser building, which is interpreted here as meaning that Great Britain offers no objections to the United States building as many large cruisers as congress will approve between now and 1931 when the whole question of naval strength will be reconsidered.

Under such an agreement the United States would achieve superiority in heavy battle cruisers, while Great Britain would concentrate on building light cruisers, which are considered essential for commercial protection.

Naval parity between the United States would be lacking during the period of the temporary agreement, although, as Sir Austen pointed out yesterday, Great Britain won't abandon the principle of maritime equality in perpetuity.

Sir Austen's statement has been endorsed generally by the British press.

The Manchester Guardian today said:

"Security by means of naval defense is largely a matter of money and since we are no longer the richest nation, we can not be sure of always having the strongest navy."

"Whether we want to or not, we must rely for our security upon the sagacity of our politicians and their ability to keep us out of war."

"If our politicians can not at all circumstances will lead us into war with the United States, they have no business to attend a disarmament conference."

TWO TRAINMEN HURT IN CROSSING CRASH

PITTSBURGH, July 28.—Two trainmen were injured when the locomotive of the capital limited, fast Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, sideswiped a coal car at the Herron crossings in Allison Park, a suburb, today.

The injured were R. E. Armstrong, engineer and W. H. Snyder, fireman, both of New Castle, Pa., who received slight lacerations when their engine went into the ditch, followed by the tender.

Two Pullman cars were derailed in the accident, but remained upright. The occupants were jarred, but otherwise were uninjured, railroad authorities reported.

The wreck was caused, authorities said, when a broken flange of a coal car on a freight train derailed the car, throwing it between the freight tracks and the tracks of the passenger.

PRINCE CAROL WILL PURCHASE CHATEAU

PARIS, July 28.—Former Crown Prince Carol, of Roumania, who has been living in a villa in Neuilly with his companion, Mme. Lupescu, since his exile from his native land, is completing today the details for the purchase of a chateau about 100 miles from Paris.

It is understood Carol is buying the chateau at the request of the Roumanian royal family and that it will be paid for with money bequeathed Carol by his father, the late King Ferdinand.

Gen. Balf, attached to the Roumanian royal household, who has just returned to Bucharest after conferring with Carol, promised to see that the money was forthcoming immediately.

MADE HOCH IN JAIL ALAMEDA, Cal., July 28.—

Raisins saved from the ration of raisin bread, yeast smuggled in and a little water out of the drain pipe, conspired to make a drink with a kick that the hind shanks of a mule never had.

And so—John J. Riley, serving a six months sentence for making drinks on the outside, was found making drinks on the inside—of the Alameda County Jail.

MOTHER QUESTIONS AIMEE'S STORY

SEARCH FOR SUBWAY BOMB USER DIVERTED TO PENNSYLVANIA

NEW YORK, July 28.—Scranton, Pa., became the operating center today of New York detectives seeking the person who placed an 18-inch dynamite bomb, capable of taking an incalculable toll in human life and property loss, in an Interborough Rapid Transit company tunnel under the East River.

A close analysis of the main charge in the bomb disclosed that it was of a type made only by one manufacturer in the United States and he is located in Scranton, according to authorities in charge of the investigation.

Fingerprints other than those of the trackwalker who found the deadly missile were found on the bomb and these lent added impetus today to the search of police for the person who placed it in the tunnel.

Alarmed by the ease with which anyone on a destructive errand may enter the subway tracks, police and Interborough officials planned today to maintain guards at all entrances, especially those leading into the tunnels.

MINES REMAIN IDLE DESPITE PROMISES OF COAL OPERATORS

STRIKEBREAKERS TO ATTEMPT TO HALT ONE
TIE-UP

COLUMBUS, O., July 28.—Despite threats of Ohio mine operators to reopen their mines, tied up since March 31 by the strike of United Mine workers in the central competitive field, the deadlock that virtually paralyzed coal production in the Ohio pits today remained in effect, as the end of the fourth month of tie-up neared.

Although a few small mines resumed operation by making temporary agreements with union miners to continue the Jacksonville wage scale of $7.50 a day, and a few small mines also resumed operations on the open shop basis, the bulk of the 25,000 Ohio miners originally affected by the strike are still maintaining their enforced vacation, and production is virtually at a standstill.

Little suffering is reported from the various Ohio coal districts among union miners. In some cases the miners have been evicted from company houses, but are helping the strike, the workmen had accumulated considerable cash reserves prior to the walkout, and many have found other employment at harvesting and other farm work, highway construction, building, in the pottery and steel plants and other factories.

Merchants in the mine districts, mostly in sympathy with the miners, are reported "carrying" the idle miners' accounts for food supplies and other essentials, in many towns.

The strike in Ohio has been marked thus far by its peaceful character, two or three isolated sporadic outbreaks being the only violence reported.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., July 28.—Forty strikebreakers, imported by the Seger Coal Co. from Pennsylvania, who have been quartered in a local hotel several days, today prepared to go to West Point, a village near here, and endeavor to reopen the company's mine there.

Plans for an effort to break the strike, which has tied up the Seger mine since December, were announced by John Seger, president, in a letter to Sheriff George Wright of Columbiana County, in which he called upon the sheriff for protection for the strikebreakers.

The sheriff and a deputy hurried to the village today, prepared to cope with any possible trouble.

Although the grain belt governors favor strongly the McNary-Haugen bill, and have severely criticized President Coolidge for vetoing it, they realize that probably another veto awaits the measure when, and if, congress passes it again. It will be re-introduced in the new congress in December and probably will pass, but even the most ardent McNary-Haugenite admits there is little prospect of passing it over a veto.

Therefore, a casual suggestion thrown out by Governor Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, that a conference of the leading figures in the financial, economic, industrial and agricultural world might be helpful, found increasing favor among the westerners as the governor's conference broke up today.

Several of the governors would like to see President Coolidge himself call the conference. But if he is unwilling they believe the idea is feasible without White House support. They realize that the opposition to the McNary-Haugen bill centers in the great conservative business interests of the east, and they believe that if men of the type of Judge Elbert H. Gary of the U. S. Steel Corporation, Owen D. Young, who collaborated with General Dawes in the formation of the Dawes plan, and the most powerful bankers of the east could be got around the same table with spokesmen for the farmers, the easterners could be convinced of the seriousness of the situation, and possibly a constructive program evolved.

Governor Hamill of Iowa, Governor McMillen of Nebraska, Governor Christensen of Minnesota, Governor Paulsen of Kansas, and Governor Sorlie of North Dakota, praising the farm bloc in the governor's conference all expressed interest and approval of Ritchie's conference idea.

MID-WEST GOVERNORS FAVOR CONFERENCE ON FARM RELIEF

Take Up Suggestion Of Maryland Chief Executive
To Have Country's Best Minds Consider
Problem Of Farmer

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., July 28.—A conference of the country's best minds—economic, financial, industrial and agricultural—to consider the existing farm situation and to try to evolve a workable plan of relief, was being considered seriously here today by several middle-west governors who have been most vocal at the annual governor's conference in demanding that something be done before winter.

Although the grain belt governors favor strongly the McNary-Haugen bill, and have severely criticized President Coolidge for vetoing it, they realize that probably another veto awaits the measure when, and if, congress passes it again. ## ANTIOCH BRONZE FOUNDRY HAS COMPLETED LIFE-SIZE CAST

The life size group, "The Goose Girl," by Frank L. Jirouch, Cleveland, O., is considered one of the most interesting pieces of bronze work ever completed at the Antioch College Art Foundry.

Jirouch is the sculptor who recently won the Garden Club prize award for a statue to be placed in front of the Cleveland Museum of Art.

"The Goose Girl" was cast by the Italian "lost wax" process under the direction of Giovanni Polizzi, and upon its completion a short time ago, was placed on the estate of George Marshall, Cleveland.

Varicose Veins Reduced Or Money Back

SIMPLE HOME TREATMENT THAT IS GIVING AMAZING RESULTS.

The world progresses. Today ailments that took weeks to cure can now be ended in a few days. If you have varicose veins or bunches you can start today to bring them back to normal size, and if you are wise you will do so.

Just get an original bottle of Moon's Emerald Oil at any dispensing pharmacist and apply it night and morning as directed to the enlarged veins. It is very powerful and penetrating, and only a little is required.

After a few days' treatment the veins will begin to grow smaller and by regular use will reduce to normal. People who want to reduce varicose veins, or get rid of running sores and ulcers, should not hesitate to get a bottle at once. It is so powerful that a small bottle lasts a long time. Any pharmacy can supply you. Sayre's Drug Store sells lots of it.

COUNTY FACES NECESSITY OF CARING FOR PRISONERS HERE

Greene County courts will not be permitted to sentence law violators to the Dayton Workhouse after September 1, as that institution has decided not to accept prisoners from outside counties, after that date.

County Commissioners and Sheriff Ohmer Tate have not received official notice to that effect but are of the opinion the confinement of a few additional prisoners in the County Jail will not overcrowd it.

A few violators are sentenced to the Dayton Workhouse from Probate Court every year.

Commissioners have annually made one-year contracts with the Dayton Workhouse for the confinement of prisoners there.

The only advantage of sentencing violators to the workhouse is that inmates are put to work while those confined in county jails are idle.

County Commissioner Herman Eavey declares the board may not take steps to provide jail inmates with employment unless a request is made by Sheriff Tate.

In the past commissioners have offered to provide work on the farm at the County Infirmary for federal prisoners sentenced to the Greene County Jail.

Mayor John W. Prugh has not committed law violators to the Dayton Workhouse since he took office, although the city is thought to have a contract with that institution.

Dayton authorities traced ownership of the car through the Holmes Royal House, No. 6, which meet at 7:30 this Thursday. Business of importance. J. W. Robinson, P. P. Henry Simpkins, P. R.

RECOVER AUTO

Police recovered early Thursday morning a Star touring car owned by William Baxley, stolen from his parking place in front of the Hoover and Allison Co. mills Wednesday afternoon while Baxley was at work.

The machine was discovered abandoned in an alley in the rear of Gladys Ave. and was apparently not damaged.

COURT COSTS MORE THAN AUTO'S VALUE

Court costs in the case amounted to slightly more than the sum involved in a replevin suit upon which a jury of five men passed judgment in the court of R. O. Copsey, justice of the peace, Thursday.

Al Wyatt had sued Fred Karns for recovery of an auto, which had been appraised at $25.

Following a trial that lasted the entire morning Thursday, the jury deliberated half an hour and then returned a verdict in favor of Karns, who may now keep the machine.

Squire Copsey said the court costs would amount to more than $30, assessed against the plaintiff.

A Great Companion Invention to the Super-Six Principle - Turns waste heat to power

This new companion invention to the Super-Six Principle converts heat wasted in all other types, into useful power.

Together they combine the highest efficiency in power generation, and the maximum efficiency in power transmission ever achieved within our knowledge. It makes Hudson the most economical car per pound weight in the world.

Steam Engine Smoothness and Power

The new Hudson motor delivers a flood of rugged power from standing start closely resembling the mighty and elastic power of the steam engine. Yet at all speeds this power is buoyant, vivacious and instantly answerable to the lightest touch of the throttle. In it are combined all advantages of speed, snap and performance of the high compression motor, with the smooth flexibility of low compression type.

Spark knock heretofore characteristic of the high-compression motor is eliminated. Ordinary gasoline gives the performance results sought through special and higher-priced fuels. By Hudson's method of vaporizing raw gasoline that enters the combustion chamber, oil dilution is prevented, and heat formerly wasted through the exhaust becomes useful power.

In all ways today's Hudson is the greatest ever produced. And it is natural that its public reception surpasses anything in Hudson history.

FLATTERY

"'Tis an old maxim in the schools that flattery is the food of fools," moralized Dean Swift.

"A flatterer's mouth worketh ruin," says the Bible. "Trust not the flatterer: in the days of sunshine he will give thee pounds of butter, and in thy need deny thee a crust of bread," warns an ancient Chinese proverb.

Nowhere among the writings of the sages can be found a word of praise for the flatterer, and yet is it fair to put all of them in a class and condemn them utterly and equally?

A certain United States senator a few years ago was making his maiden speech in the senate. Rather, he was stumbling through it, for the fledgling legislator was suffering from stage fright and was "out of form." He realized the situation and when he sat down was covered by confusion. He was an experienced public speaker and an orator of renown in his home state, but here he had failed in making the most important address of his career. But as he ceased talking, three of his staunch friends in the senate rushed over to him, by some telepathic understanding among them, and congratulated him, saying it was one of the most logical addresses upon the subject under discussion to which they ever had listened.

These friends not only flattered the new lawmaker, but they lied outright to save his self-respect and to restore his self-confidence. They realized that once he should find his "sea legs" he would occupy his seat with credit and distinction to his state and nation. Their flattery of the untried senator had the effect intended and he walked from the senate chamber with his head in the air. Later he became one of the most skilled debaters and one of the most feared opponents in the upper house.

Was such flattery "the handmaid of vice," as Cicero called it, or was it not, rather, the possible savior of a reputation?

NO USE FOR MUSIC

A rather astonishing experiment is reported to have been performed by two German scientists, who declare that cows and goats gave more milk when music was played in the stable.

The farmers of Ohio have not so far installed radios and phonographs in their barns. The theory they hold to is that Mistress Moolycow gives the most milk when her mind is not excited, and that calm philosophy and an absence of disturbance would have a more favorable effect than to jazz her up with dance tunes. But perhaps that point of view will be considered too slow for this rapid generation.

HATS OFF TO THE FRENCH

Not all American tourists like the French. Not all the French like American tourists. There has been a little loud talking back and forth across the water. But France, aside from spending too much money on a standing army, is usually intact on doing the right thing. Just now her congress votes $150,000 for the entertainment of the American Legion convention, soon to meet in Paris. Of course Parisians will get the money back. The veterans will be good spenders. But it is a courteous act.

JUST ANOTHER MIRACLE

What is a miracle or two in this day? Nothing to get excited about. An 8-year-old boy, sick on a steamer more than a thousand miles off the California coast, is treated by a doctor in a Los Angeles hospital. The treatment was carried on by radio instructions. Once it was a big world. Now we are all living on the same street.

SOMETHING THAT WORKS

An old idea is not good because it is old. A new idea is not good because it is new. What we are looking for is something that works for the greatest good of the greatest number. America has the idea in democracy. The reason it doesn't work as well as it should is not because a Mussolini dictatorship is a better form, or a soviet system is more practical. Not at all. The reason for its wobbling and creaking is that 50 percent of so-called good citizens take next to no interest in government.

THE GAS FACTS

Hearing it said and getting the facts continue to be two widely different things. We have been properly terrified by what have been declared to be the horrors of gas warfare. It has been said the use of gas will make wars of the future destructive beyond belief. Comes now the surgeon-general of the United States army, who reports that during the late war 24 percent of the casualties caused by wounds and agencies other than gas died, while only 2 percent of the gas casualties resulted in death.

SONGS of a HOUSEWIFE

CEPS by Marjorie K. Rawlings

THE HYPOCRITE

MY family is generous
With thanks for pies and cakes.
They know I stand and make them
For their dear hungry sakes.

They know I'm always ready
To stir up gingerbread,
Or shape a cookie-gentleman
With raisins on his head.

Dessert today brought praises
And smiling gratitude,
Avowals that none other
Prepares such luscious food.

I was a shameful hypocrite
As I took it from the shelf.
The truth is, I got hungry
For chocolate cake, myself!

KELLYGRAMS

by Fred C. Kelly

EVEN DEBT HAS ITS BRIGHT SIDE

If you were going to employ a man for an important job and had your choice of one heavily in debt or one not in debt, which would you prefer?

You would probably make the same choice that I would and we might both be wrong.

A big insurance company made a statistical survey of several hundred salesmen and discovered the surprising fact that men heavily in debt seem to accomplish more than those without such burden.

The explanation is believed to be only partly that a man in debt works hard to get out of debt. Still more important is the fact that a man heavily in debt is probably a smart fellow or he wouldn't have succeeded in inducing a bank or other institution to lend him over so much money.

This same investigation showed that, while heavy indebtedness may indicate more than average ability, owing a trifling amount of money is almost certain to indicate just the opposite. Any man who can induce you to lend him $5,000 must be downright clever, but beware of the fellow who touches you for a ten spot, or habitually owes people small sums.

One of the research men at Columbia University has traced the relations between various social conditions and the business situation. He found that great revivals, as well as great waves of interest in religion or in trying to talk with the spirit world, have always come in periods of business depression. When the affairs of the world look unpromising, we turn, it appears, to hope for better business or better things in the next world. Men are like children. When everything goes wrong, they want to run home to mother, or to God, for consolation.

I often wonder what would happen if every life insurance agent succeeded in selling every married man all the insurance the agent says the man ought to buy—that is, enough to protect his wife and children from having to work to earn the family income. The result of this, if everybody actually did it, would make it unnecessary for future generations to work at all. Everybody would live on insurance legacies and pass this inheritance on to his children.

FOOD ADVERTISEMENTS

There is no doubt that the public gets a good deal of dietetic ideas from food advertisements. Some of them are good, some are very misleading, therefore bad. If you are like most of us, when you get into a street car that carries advertisements, you probably read them over and over. And if you're on a diet, Oh, girl! how those pictures of delicious foods stir you!

I'm going to comment on a few of the ads I recently encountered.

1. A big dish of delicious looking macaroni.

The slogan under this was: "Use as a change from potatoes." Now macaroni is a good energy food, and potatoes also are a good energy food, but you shouldn't use macaroni as a substitute for potatoes, for while they are both starchy foods, macaroni is made from wheat, and wheat and all grains leave a final acid reaction in the body. There are so many alkaline salts in the potato that the final reaction is alkaline. It also has more vitamins and mineral salts; ordinary macaroni is made from the refined flour and so has very little of these. The average American diet is composed of too many acid-forming and vitamin-weak foods. So don't use macaroni as a change from potatoes, but as a change from bread or other grains.

(The caloric value of one cup of cooked macaroni, plain, is 100 C. to the 3 1/2 ounces—one small medium.)

2. "Nut rolls—fresh roasted nuts, delicious chocolate." Oooh! This is the advertisement of a 10-cent roll. A good candy. Nuts have a splendid grade of protein and they also have a high percentage of oil; so does the chocolate. I should judge that the entire roll would amount to at least 250 C. on account of the oil and nuts.

Candy is a concentrated food, mostly energy, and should not be given to children except as a desert, after all their growth foods have been taken; otherwise it may cloy their appetites. Nut candies should never be given to young children who do not chew well, for they may choke on them. The caloric value of these rolls should steer those who are trying to reduce, away.

3. Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil. With this ad was a picture of a child with a bottle of the oil in front of it, and the caption was: "I Love It!"

I remember one mother who wrote me that her boy was normal in every way, except that he loved cod liver oil. Well, children can be taught to not dislike cod liver oil, that's sure.

Cod liver oil is very high in the growth vitamin A, and the anti-rachitic vitamin D, and is now given by many of our best pediatricians as early as the second month. The emulsions have about one-half the amount of oil that the straight oil has.

We are now advising those who are reducing to take one or two teaspoonsful of cod liver oil during the day to be sure of the vitamin A. Those who are gaining

How to Achieve Beauty

MME. HELENA RUBENSTEIN

BEAUTY IN THE MOUNTAINS

If your vacation days are to be spent in the mountains you can hardly help making them count for beauty.

So much depends upon your lungs—upon getting the right kind of pure, fresh air to take into them and upon breathing deep down into your lungs, so that every bit of the air in your lungs is frequently changed.

Do you know that lots of us go around with the same stale air in our lungs that has been there a week, simply because we don't breathe deeply enough to get them emptied? An easy way to tell whether you are breathing correctly is to place your hands just above your stomach and below your ribs with the fingers barely touching in the center. Then take a breath and see how much expansion you get.

The cool nights and mornings in the mountains induce the profound sleep that gives absolute relaxation and means so much to beauty. You breathe more regularly and deeply in your sleeping than in your waking hours. And vice versa, you can sleep much more easily and soundly when you have spent the whole day in the fresh air and have been working your lungs to the utmost capacity. And remember that quiet, dreamless sleep is beauty sleep.

Get your eight hours of sleep, but do not think that you are benefiting by spending more time in bed. You are indulging in a luxury that does no good and may do you some harm.

Take sun baths if you can find the season. Lie perfectly relaxed with as little clothing on as possible, and let the light rays of the sun play upon your skin. Like all other good things, however, a little is beneficial, but excess is criminal. Don't allow your skin to be burned by the direct hot rays of the noon-time sun. It is the light and not the heat rays of the sun that are beneficial. So choose the time of day for your sun baths accordingly, and don't overdo them.

Did you READ it?

Here are six questions dealing with news events of the past few days which have been reported in The Evening Gazette and The Morning Republican. Can you answer them accurately? If you can, you may claim credit as a really intelligent reader; but if you fail, that means you merely skim the news, as so many people do. Answers on Classified Page.

1. What recent discovery is expected to have a profound effect on politics in Indiana?
2. What was "Bud" Stillman's wedding gift to Lena Wilson, his backwoods bride?
3. What well known motion picture actress who recently announced a divorce suit against her husband, a motion picture actor, has changed her mind and postponed the action?
4. What is the name of the well known German aviator now in this country and upon what enterprise is she engaged?
5. A western congressman was drowned in San Francisco bay recently. What was his name and what state did he represent?
6. What is the name of the navy aviator who recently set a new altitude record for flying? To what height did he ascend?

MAKING MODERN MENUS

SALMON AND EGGPLANT
Instead of the ordinary salmon scallop, try this dish with eggplant. Peel an eggplant weighing about a pound and a half, cut into cubes and cook until tender, then mash it with a fork. Combine it with a pound can of salmon, which has been drained and flaged, and add a cup and a half of thick white sauce. Put into a buttered baking dish, cover with bread crumbs, dot with butter and bake in a moderate oven half an hour.

SALMON AND RICE
Butter an oval mold and line it with an inch-layer of well boiled and drained rice. Have ready a mixture of one pound can of salmon, freed from skin and bones, half a cup of cracker crumbs, a teaspoon each of salt and lemon juice, a quarter of a teaspoon of sugar, an eighth of a teaspoon of pepper and two thirds of a cup of milk. Pack this into the rice-lined mold, cover the top with a layer of rice, put on the lid and steam three-quarters of an hour. Serve with a white sauce to which chopped pimientos have been added or with Hollandaise sauce.

SALMON TIMBALES
Chop a pound can of salmon very fine, add one beaten egg yolk, a teaspoon each of onion juice and Worcestershire sauce, an eighth of a teaspoon of salt and a quarter of a cup of finely chopped almonds; fold in the well whipped white of the egg and a cup of whipped cream and fill into greased timbale molds and bake until set, about fifteen minutes. Serve with highly seasoned cream sauce. Five servings.

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, July 28.—Within the past two years, there has been erected a magnificent building just back of the building on Center street in which the county courts are located. It is in one of the most highly populated areas in the city, at the start of Park Row, between the Bowery and Fayette street.

New York being the queer city it is, there is a small amusement park placed alongside of this building—the most incongruous place for such a thing imaginable. There is the usual ferris wheel and the small gambling stands, a couple of hot dog merchants and like attraction. I have no doubt that a great deal of its patronage comes from office clerks in nearby skyscrapers who spend their lunch hours there.

As a subject of interest to the sightseer in New York, Greenwich Village is generally thought to be in the same class with Chinatown, or the Woolworth building. It is said to be banal, lifeless, and no longer the place it once was. I am bold enough to assert that it is still the most diverting spot in the city.

Its surname "village" is certainly apropos. For all the metropolitan atmosphere it contains, it might be the merest hamlet in a deserted sector of the country. Indeed, such is the petty nature of activities in the village, it is really more small town than any real village I have ever seen.

Really it is Zion City of the House of David in reverse. It possesses the same spirit of segregation but has viewpoints in direct opposition to the ordinary colony.

A superb index to the character of the place may be found in its press. The "Greenwich Village Quill" is a monthly sheet edited by Henry Harrison. One reading the editorial comment of this man for the first time might reasonably make the error of supposing him to be slightly cracked.

Most of his articles contain pretty spiteful attacks on other pseudo artists in the place. One man bugged two dinners from Harrison, it appears. Another borrowed money from him (ten dollars). Despite Harrison's philanthropy to them it seems that these ungrateful fellows later made dirty cracks about him Harrison, both verbally and in print.

Column after column are devoted to these many and complicated feuds. In the Village, a dollar is equivalent to a thousand dollars uptown, and a meal is equal to a new automobile.

There are also, or at least were, other publications of this type. "The New Cow" was an especial enemy of "The Quill." "The Greenwich Village Saturday Night," as published by Lew Ney, was an eight-page paper, containing some verse, book and play reviews and a great deal of insignificant bickering on the part of Mr. Ney.

People in the Village are very much like children. Not only do they act like children, but their loves, affections, hates and dislikes are essentially childish. All of this is conducted in a most elegant manner, however. The language in which an editorial, demanding the return of a borrowed 50 cents, is clothed, might be a literary criticism of Shakespeare.

And therein lies the secret of their people's activity. With few of them gaining anything like success, most Villagers are poverty stricken. Most of these potential geniuses are so poor as to be continually considering the source of the next meal. A chicken dinner is as important as it is the buying of a new car to the average normal man.

Consider a few of the advertisements in a recent issue of "The Quill":

ROBERT EDWARDS
For Fifteen Years
The Village Photographer
(Intermittently)

ART WITHOUT ROBBERY
Or glance over the up-to-date notice of a local optometrist.

WRITING POEMS TIRES THE EYES
(Sometimes Editors, Too)
Drawing and Other Intellectual Work
Tires the Eyes Also.

Dr. M. Harrison

And when one reads of the enormous sums daily paid to second-rate dramatists up town one is surprised at this notice.

"Henry Harrison invites known and unknown playwrights to submit as many one-act plays as they wish. The terms of co-operation are: Each author pays $15 toward publication if his one-act play is accepted. If the book sells at $3 he will get five free copies. He has the privilege of buying additional copies at half the retail price. Little theaters are charged $10 for each play they produce, of which $7.50 will go to the author."

And just in case you visit the village, you might investigate such weird establishments as Romany Marie's or the Jolly Friars, Paper Pot, the Ivory Tower, the Blue Horse, the Pirate's Den, Vagabondia, the Green Witch, Enrico and Pagliari, Mrs. Lane's Studio.

And while this subject is being discussed, do you know that in Greenwich Village alone there are seven theaters?

A most fascinating and at the same time typically New York sort of engineering is now in progress at Park avenue between 46th and 48th streets. Formerly this block was simply enclosed by a wooden fence. The property was unoccupied above ground, simply being used as a skylight over the tracks from Grand Central station which run underneath.

Without disturbing the train service on the tracks below or the traffic in the bordering streets, the job of building a new large building was begun. A huge derrick swung steel supports into place between the railroad tracks. Even as this was being done, trains were moving back and forth. The incredibly heavy beams would be swung down into the hole, barely missing a collision with an on-coming train. Thus will a mammoth place arise, straddled with no fuss or confusion, over the tracks of the New York, New Haven & Hartford and the New York Central.

Many Minds SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"Children are not always a comfort. When I look around and see what trouble and worry and sacrifice they entail upon their parents, I am more resigned to my fate. They may act as a disciplinary agent to their parents; they may teach their elders economy and patience and unselfishness and self-control, but these virtues may be acquired by other and less strenuous means. One does not have to be a parent to learn discipline; the proper sort of wife is an ideal disciplinary agent."—Thomas Aske Clark, of the University of Illinois.

PLAYGROUND NOW IN PLACE OF "ROARING THIRD" PRECINCT

CLEVELAND, July 28.—Cleveland's "roaring third" precinct, scene of vendetta slayings, bootleg wars, and every crime on the catalogue, is to have the finest playground and recreational center for children in the country.

Frank S. Harmon, city park director, announces that work will start soon on the new community center and that he will ask the city council to appropriate a half million dollars to make it the model park of its kind, in the world.

Present To City.
The property to be developed was formerly owned by a Jewish orphanage. The Van Sweringen brothers, railroad magnates, purchased it and gave it to the city. Under an agreement with the orphanage trustees, however, none of the present buildings can be torn down or altered until 1929.

Work is to begin on a wading pool within a few days. Meanwhile, a survey of other recreational centers in all parts of the country is being made in order that the best and most modern plans may be obtained in developing the local center.

To Have Auditorium.
In 1929, Harmon hopes to begin work on an auditorium, gymnasium and indoor swimming pool. He also plans to have an outdoor swimming pool and facilities for skating and coasting in the winter.

The fact that the park is to be built in the heart of the city's crime district is not expected to interfere with the success of the project. On the contrary, Harmon believes the playground will be better attended and more appreciated there than elsewhere, and that eventually it will go a long way towards bettering conditions in the notorious "roaring third."

BAD MAN SAYS "CHECK" TO COP

ELMSFORD, N. Y.—The village board of this slumberous hamlet was confronted with a serious situation the other day when Thomas Reiter, a local grocery store manager, wrote a formal demand on the authorities for refund of a check which he cashed for Grover S. Moore, chief of the local constabulary. The chief was asked to explain, but the explanation only thickened the fog. A new-looking man, the chief of police said, had approached him carrying a fraternal lodge membership in one hand and the check in the other. So the chief cashed the check for the fraternal brother, and then Thomas Reiter cashed the check for the chief. The awkward thing about it is that no bank will cash the check for anybody, and the village board is asking itself a lot of technical questions involving the value to Elmsford of a chief of police who doesn't know a city slicker when one offers him a bum check.

The Theatre

By FLEET SMITH

NEW YORK, July 28.—Women directors for women stars and men directors for men stars. And that's not such a far fetched possibility as it might sound—especially in view of the interesting situation that has resulted from the recent work of Esther Ralston, the young Paramount star.

Miss Ralston, under the exclusive direction of men for her first pictures, was regarded almost solely as a model, or a pretty figure on which to hang clothes and parade in front of the camera for pretty and attractive shots. Then, in defiance of all the traditional moving picture prejudice against women directors, Dorothy Arzner was made a director by Paramount and her first picture was Esther Ralston in "Fashions for Women," and her second was Esther Ralston in "Ten Modern Commandments."

And it remained for the critics of the screen to discover that Miss Arzner had done what her mentor, directorial rivals had failed to do, that is, see the humor and the charm of Esther Ralston's character and successfully transfer them on to the screen. Critics were astounded, they said, to discover that Miss Ralston had real emotional and acting ability as well as a distinct flare for comedy, and all are unrestrainedly praising her work and predicting even greater things for her.

Bebe Daniels is just about ready to appropriate the title of film-dom's champion all-around athlete.

The whole thing started in "Dangerous Money," in which she learned to fence. Then she made "The Palm Beach Girl," and took the part of a swimmer and the pilot of a motorboat. She next made "The Campus Flirt," in which she gave Charles Paddock a close run for honors as a sprinter. Then "Senorita" was released by Paramount and Bebe had not only to demonstrate that she was an expert horsewoman, but was called upon to display great dexterity with the sword. Now she is making another sport story for Paramount, "Swim, Girl, Swim." Here she is shown as an expert swimmer.

FENCE AGAIN USED

An iron fence that once surrounded Greene County's old Court House, the structure which was replaced by the present building, has not outlived its usefulness. ## ONE WAY TO CUT THE COST OF NEW FURNITURE

The cost of new furniture is keeping many families from making any purchase at this time.

But this cost may be very much lowered by turning in your old furniture as part payment on the new. Replacing old style furniture for new is a definite program in hundreds of homes. It is done gradually, piece by piece—or a room at a time.

Our trade-in or Exchange Store makes a quick outlet for this used furniture. It is bought by people who have one or more rooms which do not call for particularly fine pieces. This merchandise is kept separate and not one piece has ever entered the store where our new goods is sold.

Why not be one to take advantage of our trade-in plan? It is very simple—just like trading in a used car for a new one. Phone 684 and have our appraiser call at your home, or better still, call at our store and let us talk it over.

Having your used furniture appraised does not place you under any obligations to trade it in.

FAIR BOARD MAKING READY FOR ANNUAL EXPOSITION HERE

Eighty-eight years of progress will be exemplified at the annual Greene County Fair August 2, 3, 4, and 5 for which elaborate preparations are being made by the Greene County Agricultural Society.

Secretary J. Robert Bryson has established headquarters in the front office of County Commissioners in the Court House, and entries for both the speed and class events are coming in rapidly.

Entries for the three-day harness race meet will close Thursday night.

"Uncle" Steve Phillips, Lebanon, 66-year-old horseman and veteran of the Grand Circuit tracks, has nominated a three-year-old trotter for the three-year-old and under trot for a purse of $300, to be run as the second event on the opening day's card, Wednesday, August 3.

The veteran horseman has not appeared on the local track for many years.

Purses for the six races of the meet aggregate $3,300. The premier races will be the 2:14 pace for the Greene County Lumber Co. $500 purse Wednesday, August 3, and the free-for-all pace for the Nat Hunter $500 purse Friday, August 5. These are the largest purses of the meeting.

A. E. Stupp, Tipppecanoe City, has been engaged as starter this year but other officials have not been selected. C. M. Austin, B. U. Bell and Grant Miller are members in charge of the speed department.

It is announced that all horses and cattle entered in the second and third departments, also entries in baby beef and dairy calf clubs will be required to participate in the Live Stock Parade, Friday, August 5 at 12 noon. Any prize winner not parading will forfeit premium unless otherwise excused by the head of their respective departments. The parade will take place on the race track.

Three bands will provide music on different days during the fair. The New Burlington Band, Wilson's Boy Scout Band and the Xenia Band have been engaged for this purpose, it is announced.

It Melts Freckles Away In 4 Days

H. L. Sayre was one of the first to learn that a clever chemist had at last discovered a real freckle remover—one that dissolves the brown pigment so that freckles actually melt away.

And when the unsightly spots have all gone what a difference in the texture of the skin—as soft as the finest velvet and clear and clean and youthful looking.

This new discovery is a cream and is called Flyte. It is easy to apply and never stains. H. L. Sayre and every forward-looking druggist sells it and if it fails the purchase price will be returned—Ask for a jar of Flyte. —Adv.

Here's Real Relief From Neuritis

In 24 to 48 Hours Pains Are Often Relieved and You Can Get Rest and Comfort Again.

Torturing pains—the kind that pierce and burn and never seem to let up—take a man of his sleep—that make him just a bag of nerves and all worn out. Those are the pains that dope and coal tar products can only partially relieve.

The safest and most efficient way to get rid of the persistent, nerve-racking pains of Neuritis is to get a bottle of Allenru Special Formula No. 2. Be sure you get No. 2, which comes in capsule form. Take these little dark green capsules as directed and in about twenty-four hours you should be able to notice that they have considerably reduced if not almost banished those severe, torturing pains that have caused you so many sleepless nights. Continue for two or three days more until you are satisfied with results.

It doesn't matter how long you may have suffered or whether your Neuritis is in the shoulder, arm, neck or legs, Allenru Special Formula, No. 2 should give you speedy relief. Sayre's Drug Store or any good druggist will be glad to supply you. —Adv.

Hobson's Son

Remember Hobson, or has the Spanish-American war faded entirely from your recollection? In any case, this upstanding chap is Richmond T. Hobson, son of that Captain Hobson whose achievements in that conflict brought him tremendous, if temporary, fame.

WILE SAYS:

unfavorable conditions. Apparently, authorities like Mr. Snow are not impressed by the official estimates that the value of American farm products this year will reach $14,000,000,000, an increase of $2,000,000,000 over last year.

In a special statement prepared for this writer, Mr. Snow summarizes his views in the declaration that "taking the situation as a whole, I do not recall a year in which the promise was as generally unsatisfactory as it is in 1927." He details the situation as follows:

"Drought seriously injured the winter wheat crop in Oklahoma and Kansas, and too much rain during the whole spring season left the plant without the usual vitality in all the territory east of the Missouri river. In addition, there has been a considerable amount of damage from black rust in winter wheat, a thing which is very unusual. Threshing returns are beginning to come in and they are reflecting disappointment over most of the belt. It does not look as if the winter wheat crop will total more than 550,000,000 bushels.

"The season in the spring wheat territory was very late this spring, and it was a physical impossibility to seed the full acreage intended. As a matter of fact, the acreage in North Dakota is considerably less than that of last year. The crop was seeded late over the whole area, and while weather conditions have been reasonably satisfactory since the crop was seeded, the growth has been slow and the crop is in more than the usual danger from black rust, which has already been reported at very many points, and from heat and blight before the normal hot weather of late July and early August is experienced. Up to the present time, however, in spite of the smaller acreage, there is promise of a materially larger crop than was harvested last year, but the crop will not be safe from rust danger until about three weeks

Child-birth

Is explained in wonderful Book sent free to all Expectant Mothers

MAKE the months of expectancy easier, freer from tension and pain; and make the birth of your child a happy event by using "Mother's Friend," the external lubricant for expectant mothers, known and used by three generations of mothers. Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Start today, and mean-while write to Bradfield Regulator Co., P. O. Box 17, Atlanta, Ga., for wonderful free booklet (sent in plain envelope) containing information every expectant mother should have. Begin using "Mother's Friend" now and you will realize the wisdom of doing so as the weeks roll by. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all good drug stores—everywhere.

"In the history of crop reporting there has never been an unsatisfactory crop as there is this year. The acreage is undoubtedly at least 5,000,000 acres short of that of last year, and where the crop should be late by July 4, as a matter of fact, a considerable part of it is just barely coming up. Taken as a whole, I think the corn crop is thirty days late and the chance of its maturing ahead of frost is slim. The government report, which is about to be issued, will undoubtedly show the lowest condition ever reported since crop reporting began. This low condition is a very serious matter this year because it represents a delay in growth that there is very small opportunity for correcting during the balance of the season.

"The oats crop was also seeded late for the same reason that corn was late, that is, because the months of April, May and the first half of June were marked by not only torrential rain, but the rains came day after day, giving no opportunity for prosecution of farm work between showers. The result is the oats crop, which should now be going to harvest in Central Illinois, has not yet headed out except for the comparatively small percentage of field that got an opportunity to plant at the end of March or the first of April. I think the oats crop is likely to be very considerably smaller than that of last year, and that was a small crop. The fruit crop is also a poor one, due to late spring frost."

It happens that President Coolidge is spending the summer in a region South Dakota—where crop prospects are unexcelled. From the Black Hills comes word that the state which is the seat of the summer White House "has a better promise of a harvest than we

Will your skin bear close scrutiny?

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of pimples, boils and other skin eruptions as being an indication of an abnormal condition of the system. This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S. You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the blood is nourished. I suffered from impure blood—was weak, and I had lost so much weight, I didn't look natural. I had pimples and was also bothered with a breaking-out that itched terribly. I also had boils one after another. I tried different kinds of remedies, but nothing did me any good until a friend advised me to take S.S.S., which I did. This was some time ago. Now I feel well, and I am getting along fine. S.S.S. stopped the itching and it cured me of boils. I advise all weak and run-down people to give S.S.S. a trial. It clears up the skin and makes you strong and fills you with energy." Mrs. J. W. Barker, 1337 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio. S.S.S. is made from the fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory. It is time-tried and reliable. S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

CHAPTER XXII

It was not Sally Jerome's way to run away from things that were unpleasant.

True enough, she might long to run from them—thousands of miles away from them.

But she faced them, anyhow.

For so young and gay and tender a creature, she had a marvelous courage. A courage worthy of a strong man instead of a little girl of 20.

And so this morning when she faced Ted Sloan in the kitchen, her head was held high, her chin was up, and there was a smile in the corners of her mouth.

"Don't think that you're being asked to a wedding supper," she flung the words at him cheerfully.

"I haven't heard a word from Beau and Mabel. We don't even know whether they managed to get out some minister or other to marry them, last night."

She smiled again as she filled the tea kettle for her dishes. But Ted, perhaps because he cared for her as he never was to care for another woman so long as there was breath in his body, saw that there was no laughter in the blue eyes. A man always watches a woman's eyes when he is in love with her.

"Then why bother to ask me to supper?" he wanted to know, draping his body over the back of a kitchen chair.

"Wouldn't you rather go for a drive with me and pick up a hamburger and a cup of coffee somewhere?"

Sally shook her head. "No, I don't want you to spend money on me for a long, long time," she said solemnly, rinsing out the coffee cups with cold water. "Beau must have forgotten to give you that hundred I lent him last night. So I'll just let him keep it for a wedding present and I'll make good that check of his, too. Only you'll have to give me some time on it. I can give you a couple of dollars at least every week."

She figured that she could.

Now that Beau was gone, the household expenses would not be nearly so heavy as they had been. Beu could eat a pound of meat at a meal, and his laundry bills were terrible.

"See?" she asked, looking up at Ted from the coffee-cake that she was wrapping in a clean tea-towel.

He laughed shortly. "Oh, sure, I see perfectly," he told her grimly. "Beau just pocketed that money that you gave him and walked off with it—and you're going to let him get away with it, and pay all his debts for him besides. Well, this is one debt you won't have to pay!"

While she watched him with wide eyes, he took the two checks out of his trouser pocket and tore them into bits. He came over to the sink and dropped the torn bits into the wastebasket under it.

Then, with another quick movement, he locked his arms around her and lowered his face to hers.

He was going to kiss her, too. But he suddenly saw that she was not looking at him with the same loving eyes. She was looking at him with a look of surprise and a little bit of anger.

"You don't want me, I get you!" Ted spoke briskly, and he turned away from her and stood at the screen door, biting on his pipe-stem and staring out at the blue October sky.

"You're the world's best dancer," said Sally, rattling the cups and saucers in the pan. "And you're a good friend to me most of the time. And I DO want you. I want you to come up here for supper tonight at 6, and I want you to take me to a movie afterward—or for a ride."

No answer.

"You see, Millie's boss has fallen for her, and she's asked him for supper," Sally explained, marveling at the lightness with which she could speak of John Nye now. "And I don't want to sit here alone with them like an old maid aunt. So I thought maybe you'd make a fourth. And would you go and get some eggs for me if you can find a store that's open? I used the last egg for Mother's breakfast, and Millie wants a chocolate cake."

"Millie wants the earth and a corner lot in the moon, if you ask me!" grumbled Ted, who detested Millie with all his might and main. "If she wants a chocolate cake for her cutie, why can't she rustle it up herself? I wanted you to go for a drive today, doggone it!"

But he went for the eggs, faithful slave that he was—at times.

A woman always finds a certain happiness in doing things for the man she loves—even if he happens not to love her.

Perhaps that is why so many stenographers in this world toil for married men who are in love with their own wife, and toil so willingly and cheerfully.

Perhaps that is why so many wives, whose husbands have fallen out of love with them, go on mending their socks, cooking their meals, and bringing up their children with high hearts and certain joy.

But, at any rate, Sally Jerome sang all day as she swept and dusted the house, baked the chocolate cake, roasted the joint of beef, and whipped up the fluffy bits of maxixe sauce in preparation for the coming of John Nye.

She went downstairs, too, and got some asters from Mrs. Sloan, who did not want to give them to her and showed that she didn't.

"I don't know as they're ready to cut," she said sourly, as Sally followed her out to the tiny square of backyard behind the building.

Sally never would have asked for them for herself. But there was very little that she wouldn't do for Millie. So she said nothing, but stood with her hands ready for the lovely pink and purple blooms that Ted's mother cut for her.

She took them upstairs and put some of them in a low glass bowl on the dining room table, and the rest of them on the top of the magazine rack in the shabby living room.

"Fix up everything to look as decent as you can," pleaded Millie. "I think a girl needs a nice background when she's entertaining a man in her own home."

But she did absolutely nothing, herself, toward making the background attractive. All day long she carried her clothes, her toilet articles, her little slumber-pillows, into Beu's room, and piled all of his belongings into his black tin trunk.

"There!" she cried at 5 o'clock, when the job was done. "I guess Mr. Beu won't bring his bride to that room now! And thank heaven, that I have a room of my own at last! I love you, Sally, but you do get in my way sometimes when I'm trying to dress."

She dressed herself in Sally's pale-blue frock—her best one. And Sally lie?" he asked bluntly, a broad grin on his face.

Millie nodded weakly, and hurried to introduce him to John Nye. Then she put the aster in John's button-hole and danced out of the room, before Ted had time to say anything else about it.

"I must help Sally with the supper," she explained with the sweetest little housewifely air. "We always work together, and we get things done in no time."

But as soon as the door closed behind her she went out to the kitchen. Proud of the bread-and-butter sandwiches, tied into little rolls. Proud of the chocolate cake with its sugary icing. Proud of the snowy tablecloth that she had embroidered years before with her own hands. Proud of the old silver teapot, polished until it shone like glass.

She was pink and bright-eyed with pride when the four of them sat down to the table 15 minutes later.

Everything was going beautifully. The talk was cheerful, the late afternoon sun flooded the room, the roast beef was done to a turn, the salad was crisp and cold.

"I'm glad everything is turning out so well for poor Millie," thought Sally, pouring the tea into her mother's egg-shell china cups, such a well-fed on this table before, and I've been eating here for quite some time! Beans and bread are what we usually get on Sunday night. Aint that so, Beu?"

Then her glance went to John Nye's face. "Welcome, stranger," she hailed him. "I'll tell you who I am, even if they don't have sense enough to knock us down to each other. I'm the bride—Mrs. Beauregard Jerome, Junior! What's the matter with all of you? Have you lost your tongues?"

(TO BE CONTINUED)

WOMAN NOW RULES ISLAND OF SARK

GUERNSEY, Channel Islands.

July 28.—For the second time in history, and for the first time in two hundred years, a woman rules the Island of Sark, one of the Channel Islands group, six miles from Guernsey, and the most beautiful and wildest of the islands.

She is Mrs. Dudley Beaumont, daughter of the late Seigneur or ruler of the island. As elected Dame de Sark, Mrs. Beaumont will preside over the local parliament, which is conducted after the style of a feudal court, and will have absolute power except that of passing death sentences or holding murder trials.

John Nye was sitting in Mrs. Jerome's chair and Millie was on the arm of it. They were both looking at a pale-pink aster that Millie was holding in one hand.

She glanced up, her eyes wide and shining.

"Mr. Nye thinks it's so wonderful that I have a little garden here in the city," she said in her sweet, buting voice. "But I told him I just love flowers, and I've got to have them, no matter where I am."

For one awful second Sally thought that Ted Sloan was going to burst out laughing as he looked down at his mother's pink flower in Millie's hand. Ted had been known to give Millie away when she was telling one of her little "white lies."

"Did you grow those asters, Mil-

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

The Rovin' Ritzies

By Flo Frederick

Here's a day of fishing. You'll all be wishing "Isn't it wonderful to be a Ritzie and to have such loyal friends?" asked Betty Ann. The Ritzies who had been left in Mayville had gathered together to read the letter that had just arrived from Deer Lake Lodge in northern Wisconsin. "You know," continued Betty Ann as she unfolded the letter, "That if we weren't all members of the Ritzie club, Patsy and Marty are bears and wolves, owls, squirrels, ducks and one big deer. I think that's why they call it Deer Lake Lodge. There used to be so many deer around this lake. Even yesterday, while we were out on a hike, we saw some fresh deer tracks. The guide said the tracks are about all you ever see anymore, though because a deer can smell a person miles away and is very careful to keep out of the way.

We heard yesterday that a woman at a nearby camp had shot two bears last week. Patsy was afraid to go outside the lodge after that until the guide told her that the woman had probably spent hours tracking down the bears. The few wild animals that are left are more afraid of the people than they are of the animals.

Patsy and I went fishing this morning and Oh boy! what a catch. When I think of how we used to sit along the bank of the old mill stream and wait for hours for a bite, it hardly seems possible that we could have caught so many perch this morning.

We hardly had time to cast out bait in the water before three or four perch would jump for it. The water was so clear that we could see them swimming about jumping for the minnows. Patsy got so excited she almost fell out of the boat one time while she was teasing the perch with her minnow.

It was great sport because we would tease the little perch by pulling the bait just as they made a jump for it and then wait until a big fellow came along before letting it go. Several times, Patsy hooked a big one and got so excited over it that she threw it way up in the air and it was only by luck that it fell into the boat.

How I wish you could all have been here to join in the fun. There's one thing sure, there would have been plenty of fish to go around.

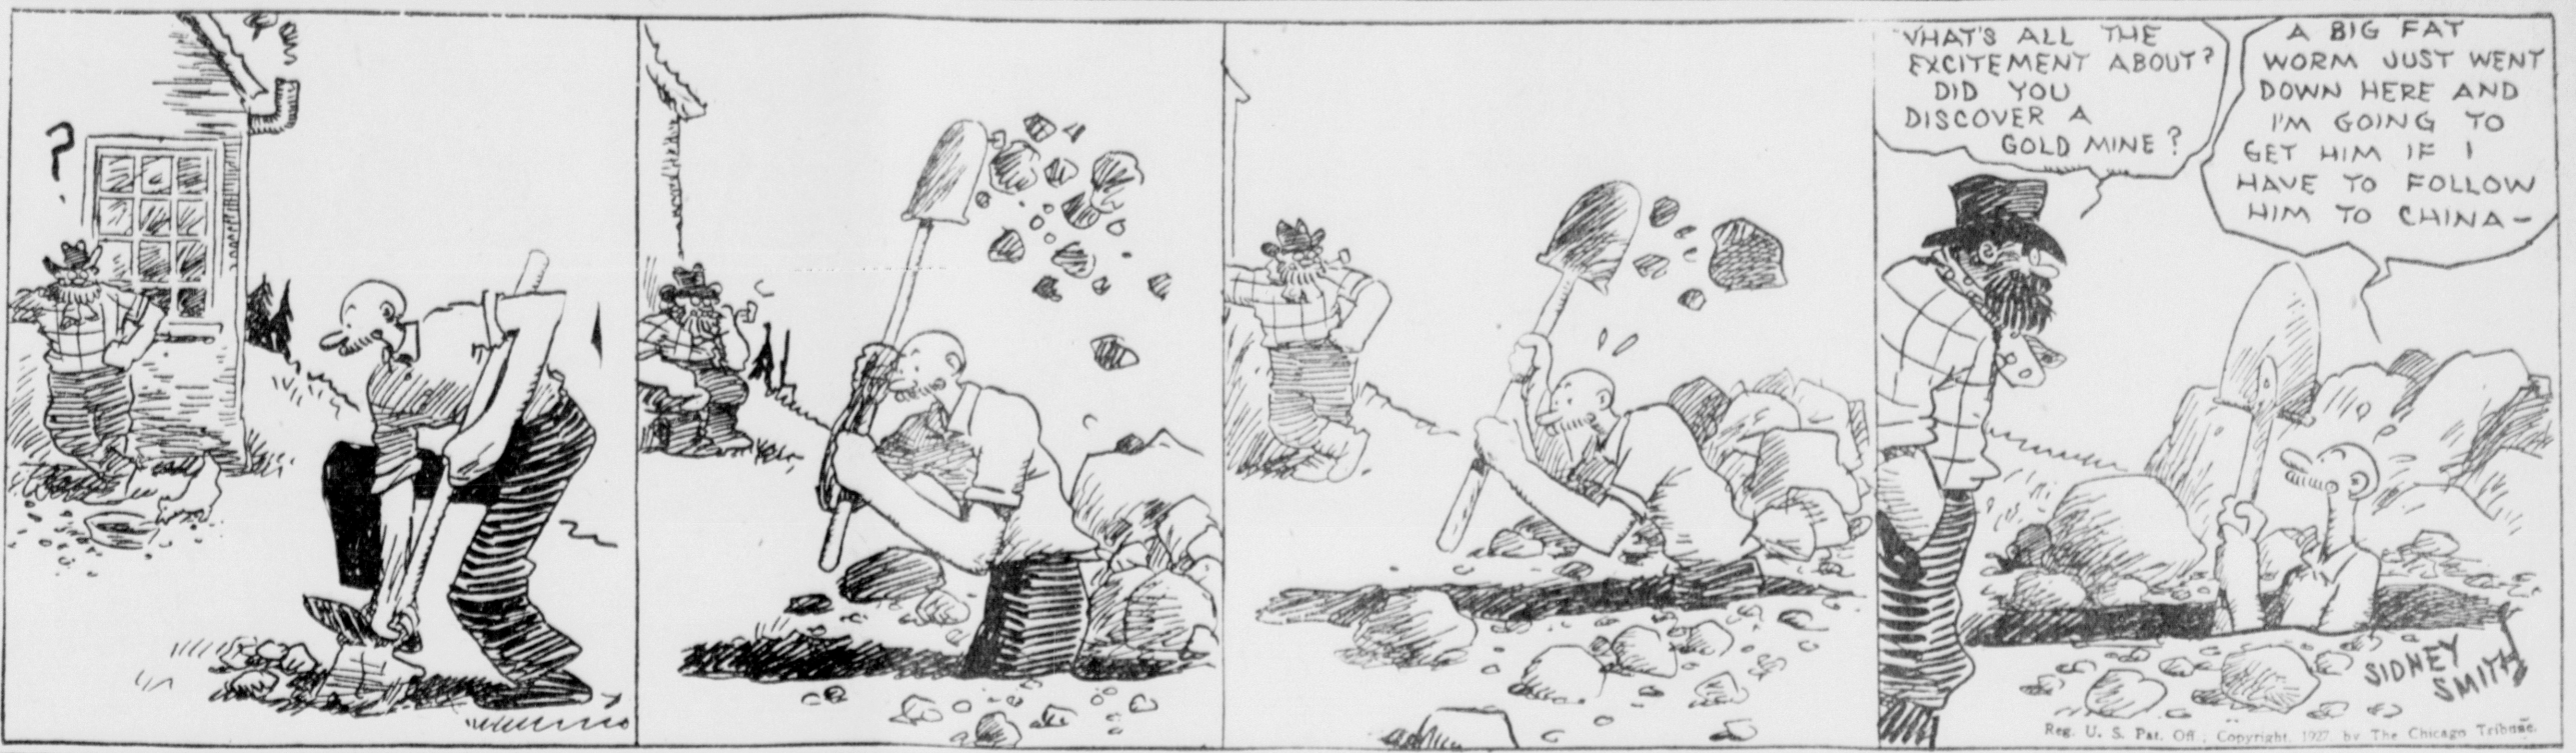

Your Ritzie Friend,
Marty.
P. S. The perch may have been fun to catch but the supper they made was better yet. Yum! Yum! I forgot to tell you that we had twenty-one on our string.

wouldn't be so faithful about writing. Especially when they are away on their vacation." The twins and Bill agreed with her but were so anxious to hear Marty's letter for he had put his name on the back of the envelope and so they didn't think it was proper time to discuss the joys of being a Ritzie.

"What does it say?" interrupted Tag and so Betty started reading at once:
Hello Gang—
Talk about fun. Say, this is the life! I guess Patsy told you about our lodge and all the stuffed animals that hang on the wall. There
